JAMES J. HILL IS DEAD

FINANCIER PASSES AWAY

Pioneer Railroad Builder Loses Struggle for Life After a Hard Fight by Physicians

By International News Service.

St. Paul, Minn., May 29.—James J. Hill, eminent railroad builder and financier, died at his home here today at 9:30 o'clock. Mr. Hill had been ill for about ten days. Unprecedented efforts to save his life had been made by a large coterie of specialists, rushed here several days ago from Rochester, Minn., and New York.

At 9 o'clock today Dr. Herman Biggs, the financier's New York physician, issued the following statement to the press:

"Mr. Hill passed an extremely bad night. He is failing rapidly. His condition is extremely critical, and his death can be expected at any moment."

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hill, arrived here shortly after 7 a. m. and hurried to the bedside. Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Hill will arrive this afternoon. Other relatives are hurrying from various points.

It is said the infection from the abcess spread below the knee and the patient lost consciousness frequently.

It was evident that his physicians were disappointed and alarmed at Mr. Hill's failure to rally within 12 hours after the operation. After the consultation attended by Drs. William J. Mayo, Biggs and Gifillian, the last named physician said the patient's failure to improve during the night constituted a dangerous omen.

One of the physicians in attendance upon Mr. Hill intimated that a certain infrequently-used sedative might be of some possible slight benefit to the patient. Other doctors present questioned the possible efficiency of these sedatives, and an added argument against the use stated that none could be obtained at any point nearer than Chicago.

Louis Hill chanced to overhear this conversation of the surgeons. Instantly he directed his secretary to call by telephone a firm of pharmaceutical chemists in Chicago and ascertain if a supply of this sedative could be obtained there. When an affirmative reply was received, Louis Hill ordered a special train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad to bring the sedative to St. Paul. It arrived here at 9:25 o'clock Sunday night, having made the trip of 431 miles in eight hours and three minutes, or at an average speed of fifty-four miles an hour. Railroad men stated that this twice all speed records between Chicago and St. Paul.

When the sedative was delivered at the Hill residence the surgeons had decided not to avail themselves of it. All traffic, both passenger and freight, on the Burlington railroad between St. Paul and Chicago had been sidetracked to give the right of way to the Hill special.

James Jerome Hill, who opened the great Northwest to development, created billions in values, did a vast amount to improve railroad methods, and himself amassed an enormous fortune, came of poor Irish and Scotch farmer stock.

By his own genius he rose to the

Kaiser Asks for $2,400,000,000 More to Continue War

Zurich, Switzerland, May 29.—Before the German Reichstag adjourns the Imperial Government will submit for approval additional war appropriations totalling $2,400,000,000 to make possible the prosecution of the war throughout the coming Winter, according to advices reaching here. From the same source it is learned that no new war loan is

Dr. Sun Yat Sen's Stolen Idol? $10,000 Offer for Goddess

Washington, May 29.—It is reported in Washington that a missing ade image of Kwannon, the Chinese Goddess of Mercy, for the recovery of which a $10,000 reward has been advertised, is none other than the potent and mysterious talisman that was stolen from Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the Chinese revolutionary, in August, 1914, at San Francisco.

The allegiance of 1,500,000 worshippers in China is said to be linked up with the possession of this particular image of Kwannon, on account of its having no known counterpart in the world.

The story is that the fate of a revolution in China hangs, in the belief of many Orientals, upon the recovery of the lost image, since there is no telling to what potent use the wrongful possessor of the idol might put the allegiance of the faithful.

As a jewel the idol is worth about $500.

HUGHES IS PRESSED TO REPLY

Questioners Want to Know if He Will Accept if He Is Given Nomination by the Republicans

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, May 29.—Insistent demand that he answer two questions prior to the assembling of the Republican National Convention began reaching Justice Hughes today. Failure to make his position on them known, he is being assured by friends and foes alike, must seriously embarrass the men who look upon him as the "Moses who can lead the Republican hosts back into the promised land." Up to the present the justice has remained mute on the questions.

To all inquiries his secretary returns the single reply:

"Justice Hughes is too busy with his duties to discuss any matters that do not pertain to them."

The two questions, copies of which are reaching the justice by both telegraph and mail, indicating concerted action somewhere, are:

If you are nominated as the Republican candidate for President by the Chicago convention will accept?

If you are the nominee of Republican party will you favor such a degree of preparedness as will place the United States in such position as a world power that it can repel any effort at invasion no matter from what quarter it come?

The great question that may interfere with the plans of the men who intend making the justice the nominee of his party is the first one. The second, all feel sure, will be answered by the Republican platform which must be adopted before nominations are made. But as to whether, if nominated, the Justice would accept, there is no one here who can speak with authority. Naturally it is generally accepted that no American would refuse a presidential nomination at the hands of one of the great parties. But that belief has never been passed upon by Justice Hughes and the active men for Colonel Roosevelt say it should be.

During the last forty-eight hours, many delegates favorable to Hughes have received telegrams calling their attention to the embarrassing position the party would be in should Justice Hughes be nominated and then decline to make the race. There is no doubt that these telegrams are making the Hughes advocates uneasy and that they would greatly welcome an expression of intention on the part of their candidate.

There was a growing belief in political circles here today that the plans of the justice will be made public—probably through some intimate friend—before the end of this week. If he will agree to accept, his nomination is assured. That is the consensus of opinion among Senators and Representatives here without regard to their personal feelings. But they say that the longer the announcement is withheld the greater the danger that the friends of Colonel Roosevelt will be able to dominate the convention.

FATHER TO TELL OF TRAGEDY

Expect to Secure the Twelfth Juryman Today for Trial of Student in Poison Mystery

Waukegan, Ill., May 29.—The third week of the Orpet trial opened today with the prosecution planning to present as its first witness Frank Lambert, the aged father of the dead schoolgirl.

Mr. Lambert will tell how, after waiting all night, he found Marian's body in the snow of Helm's woods, her school books under her arm, and crystals of the deadly poison that caused her death sprinkled on her cheeks and lodged under her finger nails.

The fight over the final juror to try Orpet opened today. It was expected that by noon the twelve men who are to decide the fate of the young collegian would have been selected. Eight jurors have been sworn in, and three others have been tentatively accepted. Judge Donnelly ordered only fifty veniremen subpoened today instead of the regular panel.

COURTROOM THRONGED.

Crowds thronged to the Lake County courtroom today in the hope of seeing the jury completed and hearing the story of the victim's father from the witness stand. Mr. Lambert, worn and haggard from the strain of attending court each day, kept out of sight as much as possible.

The possibility of his taking the witness stand revived the flagging interest of the country folk in the neighborhood, and a record-breaking throng was the result.

While the prosecution is planning to play one of its trumps in the person of Mr. Lambert, the defence is actively engaged in attempting to secure testimony intended to corroborate the claim that Marian Lambert committed suicide. The defence will try to prove that the girl attempted to swallow cyanide of potassium a few days after she heard that Orpet was about to announce his engagement to Celestia Youker.

Attorney James H. Wilkerson, Orpet's senior counsel, admitted that he had been conducting a search for a nurse who is said to have swept the poison from the girl's hand when she was about to place it in her mouth. At this time the Lambert girl's health is said to have been such that she desired to take her life.

TELL OF SUICIDE THREAT.

Miss Lambert is said to have sought the advice of this nurse, who was then in the employ of a Lake Forest family. According to the story told to Orpet's counsel the girl was morbid and threatened to kill herself. The nurse, alarmed by her actions, is said to have consulted a cousin, Joseph Hartman, who told the story to Orpet's lawyers.

According to Hartman, he gave Miss Lambert a harmless drug, with specific instructions as to how it should be taken. An attempt is now being made to verify Hartman's statements, but at the present time the nurse cannot be located. The defence will continue to search for her in the hope of producing her at the trial.

It is believed that the three tentative jurors will be accepted and sworn in today, and that the last of the good men and true will be in the jury box shortly after the opening of court. The real fight on the part of the prosecution to convict Will Orpet of the murder of Marian Lambert will then begin.

Latest War Bulletins

London, May 29.—German troops in East Africa have retreated twenty miles before the victorious advance of the British, it was announced by the War Office today in the following official statement:

Brigadier-General Northey, commanding the British forces on the northern borders of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, reports that on Thursday he advanced twenty miles into German territory on the whole front between Lakes Nyasa and Tanganyika. The enemy retired twenty-one miles north of Karonaga and Impamba, eighteen miles northeast of Fort Hill, toward Neu Langenberg. South African Nyasaland troops bridged and crossed the Songwe River during the night. Another column moved down the Pangani River, by way of Marago Opuni, eighteen miles northwest of Sara.

London, May 29.—Married groups between the ages of twenty-seven and thirty-five reported to the War Office for service today. These men were given a chance to enlist voluntarily under the Derby scheme before conscription goes into effect.

Rome, May 29.—Schools and government buildings are being transformed into places of refuge for the thousands of fugitives who have fled before the Austro-Hungarian invasion of Vecenza province.

Berlin, May 29.—A Russian mine sweeper, while reconnoitring off the Courland coast, has been sunk in the Baltic by a mine.

SEEK SLAYER OF LAWRENCE WOMAN

Lawrence, May 29—A general roundup of the city and suburbs was undertaken today in an effort to locate the man who beat to death Mrs Frances Harmon, proprietor of a lodging house in Essex street, in the lower business section.

The police started to work on the theory that the assailant came to the house, drunk, seeking a room for Sunday and Sunday night. They believe he was crazy with liquor and attacked Mrs. Harmon. In her struggle to defend herself she was clubbed over the head with a milk bottle.

Although no boarder saw the man, who was heard bargaining for a room about 1:30 Sunday morning, the police believe that he had roomed there before, and have an idea where the man belongs.

Mrs. Harmon's body was not found until nearly 7 o'clock Sunday night, locked in the attic room to which boarders had heard her showing the strange lodger. At 1:30, soon after the stranger's arrival, screams were heard by several boarders.

The two policemen on that beat, Fawley and Lannon, also thought they heard screaming. They went to the front door and stood in the doorway listening, but heard nothing more, other than a scraping noise as if someone were carrying a chair upstairs.

They waited some time. While they were there, they saw no man leave the house. They are uncertain whether or not they saw the man enter before they heard the screaming.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Frost, who occupy the room adjoining that in which Mrs. Harmon slept, on the second floor, reported that they heard the man asking for a room just before 1:30. They said that Mrs. Harmon took him to an attic room and then went back to her room.

Soon afterward the man was heard asking Mrs. Harmon for matches, saying that he had no light in his room. They heard Mrs. Harmon go up to the attic room, as they thought, to fix the man's light. It was shortly after that they heard screams, but paid no special attention to them, in the belief that some lodgers were quarrelling.

'POISONED PUFF' CASE OPENS WEDNESDAY

Providence, May 29.—The trial of Mrs. Hattie E. Oakley, charged with causing the death of Almon Vadeboncoeur, of Woonsocket, by means of alleged poisoned cream puffs, will open here Wednesday. The case was scheduled to start today, but by agreement of counsel it was postponed.

Mrs. Oakley is also accused of causing the serious illness of Henry Cassavant by means of the puffs, which, it is claimed, she mailed to the man. Cassavant, it is feared, has been crippled for life.

Police Chief Frederick E. Coe said today that he would have to convey Cassavant from Woonsocket to the Providence court house in an ambulance, and then to the courtroom on a stretcher. Cassavant, who ate two of the puffs, is unable to move his limbs. Vadeboncoeur, who ate one of the puffs, died two days later.

A man supposed to be John Angeondia, 35 years old, a New York manufacturer committed suicide in the Back Bay Hotel early today. His body, with a revolver with one car bridge fired, was discovered by a chamermaid. A bullet wound through the right temple, entering his brain caused his death, according to Medical Examiner Leary. The man came to the hotel last night, and registered from New York. A note, addressed to a brother, was found in the room. The police would not disclose its contents.

According to Chief Coe, Cassavant and twenty-seven other witnesses will testify against the woman.

Wednesday will be devoted to the selection of the jury. It is believed that Cassavant, the first witness, will testify Thursday.

BULGARS IN BIG DRIVE ON GREECE

Storm of Shells Hurled Against Points Held by Allies; Teutons to Push Action in All Theatres

Paris, May 29.—Riots have broken out in Athens as a result of the Bulgarian invasion of eastern Macedonia, according to a telegram received today from the Greek capital. A hostile demonstration was made in front of the palace.

Athens, May 29.—Bulgarian troops equipped with German artillery and led by German officers are violently bombarding the allies' positions on the Demir-Hisser front in Macedonia, where French and British forces hold the Greek port of Salonica.

The Bulgarians have penetrated Greek territory for fifteen miles, and at some points where the Greek troops tried to stem the invasion they were vigorously shelled by the Bulgars.

All the indications are that the long expected drive against the allies in Macedonia is finally under way and that the central powers have decided upon an offensive campaign in practically all the theatres of war.

PROTEST BY GREEKS.

Strong protests have been made to the Bulgarian government by the Greek government against the incursion of Bulgarian soldiers on Greek soil. Sunday mass meetings were held here and in Salonica when resolutions were adopted protesting against the invasion of Greece. These were cries of "Down with the Bulgarians."

ARTILLERY DUEL AT VERDUN

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 29.—Two attacks were delivered by the Germans against the French position in the Malancourt wood northwest of Verdun last night, but both were repulsed, it was announced today by the French War Office.

East of the Meuse River the Germans concentrated their artillery fire against Fort Vaux.

Throughout all of Sunday and all of Monday the big guns were hammering the French positions.

The French guns replied and the artillery duel ... [illegible] one of the ... engagements. German losses before Verdun are set at more than 250,000 by the Petit Parisien. The Echo de Paris states that the ... [illegible] ... Germans lose east of the Meuse since during the past week were about 11,000.

After strict verification of the figures, the French are known to have lost one-third of this number in the fighting at Fort Douaumont and the Haudromont quarry.

Reliable information reached Paris that between July 20 and 22 the Germans employed seven divisions on both banks of the Meuse. Two of these was transferred from Flanders and two others from the Somme region.

FOUR DIVISIONS ATTACK.

On the western bank of the river four German divisions were engaged in attacks on May 21, 22 and 23.

West of Mort Homme, where the Pomeranian brigade attacked one of the French regiments, the most heroic incident of the week of fighting occurred. The commander of the Third Battalion, reputed to be one of the bravest officers in the French army, disappeared during the battle. Later he returned, covered with blood from head to foot, and his left shoulder smashed, while his uniform was in tatters.

Cut off with a handful of men, the major fought desperately until, alone with the butt of a rifle stretched him to the ground unconscious. When he recovered, he crawled for a mile around over heaps of bodies until he regained his own line.

SINGS MARSEILLAISE.

The battle was still going on, and without delay the major led his men in a victorious charge in which he received a second wound in the chest.

While his wounds were being dressed in the field ambulance, he was singing the Marseillaise, which was interrupted by the arrival of his general, who removed the cross of the legion of honor from his own breast and pinned it on that of the major.

HOW BULGARS INVADED GREEK TERRITORY

A BULGARIAN ARMY has seized three Greek forts on the border and is reported advancing down the valley of the Struma River. Its objective is uncertain. The movement may be aimed at Salonica, where a large French and British army has lain idle for months. Kavala, on the Aegean, fifty-five miles from Demir-Hissar, is also mentioned as its possible target. There has been heavy fighting during the past week around Doiran and Ghivgheli, on the frontier northwest of Salonica.

which runs through the new Greek territory acquired in the Balkan wars. It is about forty-five miles northeast of Salonica.

THREE FORTS CAPTURED.

Pro-ally newspapers declare that the Bulgarian offensive is aimed at Greece as well as the allies and puts the question:

"Will the Bulgarian flag supplant the Greek flag in Macedonia?"

There are military critics who think that the Bulgarians will try to drive through to Kavala and the Aegean coast.

Three Greek forts and several blockhouses were captured by the Bulgarians, but the Greeks are in possession of Seres, an important city in the Struma valley, just south of Demir Hissar.

Say Athens Ordered Greeks to Fall Back

By G. J. STEVENS,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

Salonica, May 29.—Further details of the occupation of Fort Rupel by a Bulgarian force, about 1,000 strong, have been received here.

The Bulgarians halted about two kilometers before the fort and their commander, accompanied by a general officer, asked the Greek officer in command to surrender.

The latter refused and opened fire.

The fighting continued for several hours. It only ceased when the Greek commander received peremptory orders from Athens to stop firing, evacuate the fort and withdraw to Demir-Hissar.

Later, it is alleged, the Greek army received orders to evacuate the whole Strumitza Valley, including Seres, and to fall back on Kavalla.

While the Bulgarian movement may be explained as a defensive measure in preparation for an offensive by the allies, the real intentions of the Bulgarians as yet are obscure, unless it is the beginning of an offensive against Salonica itself.

The Bulgarian invasion has produced a profound impression here. The local papers publish violent articles calling on the government to intervene.

Bulgarians Tell of Drive on Salonica

WAR SUMMARY

The Teutonic allies appear to have launched a vigorous offensive against Salonica, so that the aspect of the war may be summarized thus:

Germans attacking at Verdun.
Austrians attacking in the Trentino.
Turks stiffening their resistance to the Russians.
Bulgars attacking Salonica.
Germans attacking (though mildly) in Poland.
The great allied drive is not yet in sight.

The attack on Salonica is chiefly significant because it proves that the Teutonic allies have reached an understanding with Rumania. So long as there was danger of a move by Rumania on her rear, Bulgaria would not undertake an invasion of Greece.

For the Bulgars have invaded Greece, penetrating fifteen miles into Greek territory. The tongues that justified the allied seizure of Salonica are already laying the ground for a protest against this fresh Teutonic attack on a small nation.

The Austrians announce the capture of a fort—armored work—near Arsiero on the west, and a fortified dam near Asiago. The Arsiero-Asiago line will see some hard fighting in the next few days; and if the Austrians carry it, the reverse to the Italian arms will be even more serious than the heavy setback they have already suffered.

Paris reports a resumption of German attacks at Verdun, but says the attacks were repulsed. It would not be surprising now to see the Germans attacking in the Forest of Hesse, southwest of Dead Man's Hill, in an effort to cut the northern railroad that supplies Verdun. The French are completing the organization of a new line of defence on the road at the foot of the heights which are crowned by Forts Marre, Choisel and Bois Bourrus.

Mining and artillery activity ruled along the British front. The Russians report the repulse of a Turkish offensive in the Caucasus. Russian progress in this region has ceased for a period of weeks, now.

IRISH REVOLT IS DEPLORED BY JUDGE RILEY

Every enemy of Ireland is rejoicing in the recent revolt, according to Judge Thomas P. Riley, speaking at St. Peter's Hall, Cambridge, under the auspices of St. Peter's parish, Concord avenue. He said in part:

"Constitutional statesmanship as carried on under the leadership of O'Connell, Duffy, Burt, Parnell and Redmond and their associates is the only policy under which justice and recognition for Ireland has been won.

"Physical force and revolt in Ireland has always spelled disaster and destruction to every hope and aspiration of Ireland.

"While the apparently eager and vicious vindictiveness of England's terrible retribution for the recent revolt as manifested in her summary execution of the leaders, there is deeply deplorable yet the revolt itself is none the less deeply deplorable in that it seriously and adversely affected the whole tried and splendidly proved policy of constitutional statesmanship, under which Ireland has steadily and surely won everything for which she has ever striven, including the hope of self-government itself, and has pushed back from the very moment of realization to the very brink of impossibility the hopes of that self-government for which hope the participants in the revolt were willing to die."

SCEPTICAL OF PEACE SPEECH

By International News Service.

Washington, May 29.—Diplomats in Washington discussed with profound interest President Wilson's address before the League to Enforce Peace. None would comment on it for publication, but frank approval of many of its features was expressed.

The representatives of some of the smaller powers spoke in high praise of the President's utterance concerning the secondary nations and heartily acclaimed his counsel to the world to lay aside the diplomacy of force and to substitute therefor the diplomacy of justice.

DIFFER ON WILSON SPEECH.

President Wilson's advocacy of a world police force to compel peace was met with various opinions. Approval was given it in Democratic official circles outside of Congress, and it was likewise endorsed by many who heard it, but in diplomatic circles there was indicated the greatest doubt that anything would ever materialize from it. Some publicists of international reputation also were sceptical that any continental power would accept it.

Diplomats were surprised by the President's virtual announcement that the United States would be willing to enter into an alliance or federation of nations to enforce peace. They construed the declaration as a departure from this country's traditional policy of holding aloof from "entangling alliances," which was formed by Washington and Jefferson and never deviated from.

President Wilson's assertion that if the government should suggest or initiate a movement for peace, the people of the United States would wish the organization of an international association of nations to maintain the inviolable freedom of the seas, and to prevent any war being begun either contrary to treaty covenants, or without warning and full submission of the causes to the opinion of the world, recalled to European diplomats the Holy Alliance organized after the Napoleonic wars.

BRITISH BETRAYED ALLIES.

It was formed at the invitation of the Russian Emperor and joined among others by Great Britain, France and Austria-Hungary. Its objects were much the same considering the time, as the one now proposed. The Holy Alliance, however, disintegrated through discord and wars. Its tendency, it was declared, was to drive nations apart and to war rather than to bind them closer together and insure peace.

Out of the Holy Alliance also, it was said, came the inspiration for the Monroe Doctrine, suggested to the United States by the British government, which was using its diplomacy secretly against its friends in the alliance.

One distinguished publicist declared President Wilson's proposal of a federation to enforce peace and the league's program as a "form of international lynch law." He declared the Senate of the United States would not approve of it for the following reasons:

1—It would necessitate the surrender in part of the national sovereignty.

2—Complete independence in conducting its foreign affairs would be taken away from the nation.

3—The dominating factor in such a federation would be European, not American, and would be reserved to two or three of the great powers whose policies would be opposed to the principles for which the United States stands.

4—Every power signatory to the treaty creating such a federation would be compelled to use its armies and navies in support of the decision of the majority of the powers voting, whether the decision of the majority was just or unjust.

5—Membership by the United States in such a federation would involve this country in the Balkan problem, the Scandinavian problem, the African problem, the Albanian question and the Chinese situation.

6—Membership by European countries would involve them in American difficulties and entail the death of the Monroe Doctrine.

7—Adhesion by the United States to such a peace tribunal for the forceful settlement of questions relating to government would subordinate the republican to the monarchical idea and discount the value of America's counsels in the society of nations, as there would be no open alignment from the beginning against the United States.

Says Czar's Heart Bleeds at Woe of Jews and Poles

By International News Service.

London, May 29.—The heart of Czar Nicholas of Russia bleeds for the Jews and Poles in his Empire, for their losses and sacrifices in the war, and particularly at the misery that has come to those in Poland, according to a statement from Petrograd.

The statement, which was made by M. Sazonoff, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, says:

"The Emperor has been so moved by the distress of the peoples of Poland within the German lines, that the greater demands of human sympathy have swept aside the military aspects and he has freely given his permission for the widespread relief work to be conducted by The Rockefeller relief committee for it has seemed better to him that there should occur even a leakage in relief provisions than a single subject should suffer unnecessarily.

Poles cannot expect in this supreme life and death struggle that we can outline a full program for the future of Poland.

The statement says that the peoples of Poland may look forward to the "dawn of a new era and a period of unexampled development which will follow the successful conclusion of this war."

GIRL'S GHOST IN COURT SAYS DOROTHY DIX

By DOROTHY DIX.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—The big courtroom at Washington in which the trial of William Orpet is being held is a gloomy and haunted chamber these days.

It is haunted by the ghost of little Marian Lambert.

Still and peaceful the body of the dead girl lies in the grave in the cemetery in Lake Forest, under a mound of flowers that her schoolmates keep perpetually fresh and fragrant, but the spirit of her lingers in the room where the boy man is accused of having killed her is fighting for his life.

You can feel it, a palpable presence in the air, as real as any of the flesh-and-blood people about you. It crouches behind Orpet's chair, it hovers over the jury box, and stills the thoughts of every witness.

GREAT MYSTERY WHAT MARION SAID AND DID.

It is the theme on every tongue, for the great mystery of the whole case is not what Orpet did and said on that fatal morning, but what Marion Lambert did and said.

Strangely enough no one seems to have the power to materialize this spirit. We all feel so much about them, but they are so shadowy that the reality of the beauty escapes us.

Marian Lambert stood out from her bright life in this neighborhood. She went to school and Sunday School here. She had school chums and intimates and all of those who knew her as well as one seems able to give a description clear enough to visualize her to the stranger.

BOUGHT TO LIFT HER ABOVE THEIR LEVEL.

I have talked with dozens of people who were acquainted with her, and this is the composite portrait that they draw for me:

Marian Lambert was of English descent.

Her father is a gardener in the Kuppenheimer estate, and she lived in a plain little flat over the garage.

She was the only child and adored by her parents, who did everything in their power to give her educational advantages, and to lift her above the level of their poor, hard-working lives.

It is one of the tender and touching little details of her story that her mother picked clothes by the week in a hand-laundry to get money to give the girl pretty clothes so that she might be as well dressed as her high school mates.

GUARDED BY PARENTS, BUT NOT TOO WELL.

Marian's parents appeared to have guarded her as well as they could.

It is a long walk from her home to the Sacred Heart Convent station, where she took the trolley going to and from school; and when she was late coming home her father or her mother invariably met her at the station.

But on the floor dance that her mother worked in the laundry the girl was free to go and come as she pleased, and she was indulged in the dangerous privilege of spending many nights away from home with her girl friends.

But many other parents take that same risk with their daughters.

Personally, Marian was very pretty, an English rose that had bloomed true to type on an American stem. She was slender, of medium height, with a fair and delicately tinted complexion and wavy, light hair.

She was full of vivacity and high spirits, a giggling girl, a mischievous monkey of a girl who was fond of playing tricks in school, and who was generally at the bottom of all school pranks.

Marian liked boys and enjoyed their attentions, as every normal girl does, but it is the testimony of all the youth who went with her that she was very prudish. They say that she resented any familiarity that she would not let them kiss her, or even hold her hands, and they find it hard to believe even yet that she gave herself so completely to William Orpet.

That she was insanely infatuated with Orpet there seems no doubt. In school parlance, she "ran after him." She seems to have been much more in love with him than he ever was with her.

It is almost invariably the case that the woman who lets her affections betray her, loves more than the man does.

HER MAD DEVOTION WAS OF MATURE WOMAN.

None of the marvels of this case is the precocious passion of this girl of eighteen years. Her love was not this "bread and butter" fancy of a schoolgirl, but the mad devotion of a mature woman.

As to whether Marian Lambert was subject to spells of melancholy or not, the girl's friends do not agree. Some say that she was often despondent and depressed and has been overheard to say during the past few weeks that she had declared that she did not think life worth living after she had heard that Orpet was engaged to Celeste Yoakey.

Others of her schoolmates thought her always passionately happy. No one appears to have observed her closely enough to have any real idea of her mental attitude during the past year.

CARRIED IN HER HEART A TERRIBLE SECRET.

Certainly, if Marian Lambert was able to keep up even a semblance of cheerfulness and lightheartedness during the six months before she died, she must have been a girl of the most extraordinary strength of character and self-control.

For during all of that time she carried in her heart a heavy secret.

First, the knowledge of her guilty relationship with Orpet, and then the black shadow of impending disgrace.

Part of the time she knew that the curse of five was upon her and she did herself it almost at the price of her life, for just about the Christmas holidays she almost died in consumption.

What a secret for a girl to keep, and yet she kept it so well that even her mother never suspected it—the mother was

AMAZING DECEPTION PRACTICED ON ORPET.

And the girl could keep her own counsel, finds its most amazing illustration in the fact that she did not tell Orpet. Orpet never was so longed any fear of the thing that he and she dreaded the most in all the world.

On the contrary, knowing the danger as she made it, he believe it still existed to force between them a lie that she thought he would not dare to break.

It was this ruse that is used early in only the most callous of women to play upon fickle men, the honor of men who have tired of them and to whom they can appeal in no other way.

How did this little simple country-reared girl ever know of such a thing?

How did she ever have the nerve and hardihood to do such a thing?

Surely it is the strangest and most un-girlish act a young girl ever did!

WHAT WOULD SUCH A GIRL AS MARION DO?

Here then is Marian Lambert, so far as she has been projected upon the film of the case. A school girl in the thrall of a torrential passion, a girl of darkness with the hard, worldly wisdom of forty; a girl who was ice to all the world and to her self, a school girl who could keep her own counsel, who could smile and chatter and giggle and romp in defiance from her childish mien, while she was living the most tragic drama of experience of a fatal and tragic romance.

MRS. GOULD WINS THIRD OF FORTUNE

New York, May 29.—A referee has reported to the Supreme Court that Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, who is separated by a court decree from Howard Gould, is entitled to the income from one-third of $421,454. This is the net sum left from the sale of property at the southeast corner of Fifth avenue and Seventy-third street which George Gould sold under foreclosure.

Woman Tells How Her Wit Trapped Poisoner Waite, Doomed to Die

ROOSEVELT, ON WAY TO WEST, CHEERED

By WILLIAM HOSTER.

New York, May 29.—Several hundred persons cheered Colonel Roosevelt as he started for his four-day western trip.

Colonel Roosevelt lifted his black campaign hat and bowed several times, and especially when the sound of a woman's voice could be heard above the tumult. His infectious smile was reflected in the faces of every one and a salvo of good wishes followed until he boarded the train.

Newspaper city is now outstanding. This will be his last speaking tour before the Chicago Convention. He was in buoyant frame of mind, apparently serene and confident. Before his return on Thursday night he will have struck his final blows in the Middle West. The rest will be left in the hands of his delegates. With the Republican National Convention looming ten days away, talk of a third ticket among the Progressives, whose convention will assemble in Chicago at the same time, constantly grows more pronounced.

Confidential talks with Colonel Roosevelt's callers at Oyster Bay indicate clearly that the Progressives are in a militant frame of mind, believing they will hold the balance of power in the coming campaign and will insist upon being treated accordingly.

Republican leaders who believe the Progressives will accept any terms offered them at Chicago are, therefore, in line for a severe jolt. Likewise, it can be said that an offer to permit the Progressive leader, meaning Colonel Roosevelt, to write the Republican platform is the essential parts of it, will not be regarded by the Progressives as by any means a satisfactory concession to them.

The name of the man who will stand upon the platform ultimately adopted is of much more importance to the Progressives than the platform itself. Indeed, with so many things likely to happen between the time the platform is adopted and the election, the Progressives are veering around to the belief that a brief platform will be the most advisable, dealing with preparedness and with perhaps, a short reference to the tariff.

The record of the candidate selected, the Progressives believe, ought to be the best platform in this campaign, inasmuch as the next President will have to deal with many national and international questions which cannot possibly be included in a platform at this time.

Therefore, the Progressives plan to concentrate upon the candidate to be named, and it is upon this point that the Republican leaders will have to satisfy them.

The Progressives are frankly for Roosevelt. The Republican leaders will have to convince them of the superior qualities of any other man suggested, if a third ticket is to be avoided. And of all the names that so far have been considered seriously for the nomination there are but three who come within the ken of the Progressive leaders. They are Roosevelt, Hughes and Root.

The nomination of Root would certainly result in the naming of a third ticket. He is the last man the Progressives would accept.

Somerville, N. J., May 29.—The young woman whose "K. Adams" telegram made her the nemesis of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, who was found guilty of the murder of his millionaire father-in-law, John E. Peck, confessed today that she had liked him as much as all the women who knew him did.

Seated on the porch of her home Miss Elizabeth Hardwick discussed the intuition that had impelled her to become the determining factor in a murderer's detection or escape, a man's life or death.

"Yes, I know there would have been no Waite trial if I had not sent that message," she said gravely. "I am not sorry. I can't be sorry for what I did because I know it was right."

She set her mouth firmly. It is an uncompromising mouth to match her coolly appraising eyes. Even when Elizabeth Hardwick smiles there is an unswerving calculation behind her amusement. She did smile oddly enough, a few moments later when she said, apropos of the trying publicity she had encountered:

"I think I know just how Dr. Waite will feel when they electrocute him, just the way I felt when batteries of cameras were aimed at me in the courtroom building. That was awful. I've always hated to have my picture taken, although I've often thought I should love to appear in moving pictures."

Questioned about her acquaintance with the murderer, she said:

"I met him first in this house about a year ago. He was my cousin by marriage, you know. Mrs. Waite, my cousin, had visited us several times and last year she brought her husband to see us. We all liked him from the first and continued to like him until some time after Mrs. Peck died.

"Call it intuition if you like, I suppose that is the right name for it, but whatever it was that feeling was overpowering, and, as all the world knows now, it was true. My uncle only suspected him; but I, the moment the doctor told me the wounds of his suspicion, was convinced. I knew he was guilty.

"I advised my uncle to send a telegram to Percy Peck. But he objected. He wasn't sure enough. He was afraid the faith of the Peck family in Dr. Waite was too strong for them to believe anything so terrible against him.

"My uncle's, you see, was the man's way—the way of reasoning and hesitating. Mine was the woman's way—the way of feeling and acting. I made up my mind to send a warning telegram. When I make up my mind about anything, that settles it."

Miss Elizabeth Hardwick smiled and again there was a feeling of cold strength behind the mask of gaiety.

LANE AND THAYER SPEAK AT BROWN

Providence, May 29.—Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, and William Roscoe Thayer, author of the "Life of John Hay," will be the chief after-dinner speakers at the 145th commencement of Brown University on June 21. The commencement week exercises will begin with Alumnae Day at the Women's College on Saturday, June 17, and conclude with the regular meeting of the corporation on June 22.

FINANCIER PRESIDENT OF CHINA IS DEAD

top of the ladder, became one of the mentors of the New World, inspired tens of thousands of others to lives of usefulness and well deserved the title of "The Empire Builder."

Mr. Hill was born near Guelph, Wellington County, Ontario, Canada, on September 16, 1838. He was the son of James and Anne (Dunbar) Hill. His childhood was spent in Canada. From his seventh to his fifteenth year he attended Rockwood Academy, a Quaker school. He intended to study medicine, but his father died in 1853 and the young man took a job in a country store.

After surveying the field of the whole United States he selected St. Paul, Minn., as the best place for his start in life. In 1856 he secured employment as a shipping clerk. He was a man who thought a great deal about his work and he studied transportation and fuel problems carefully.

BUILDS STEAMBOAT.

Within a year he set up in business for himself. He became a steamboat and railway agent. In 1870, with a partner, he built a steamboat for use on the Red River of the North. This brought him into competition with the powerful Hudson Bay Company. The great corporation soon found the struggle too, and sold out to Mr. Hill and his own service, putting him in charge of the company's interests in that district. He was the first to take coal from Mouse River. He organized, with Donald A. Smith, George Stephen and Norman Kittson, he secured complete control and the line was reorganized in 1879 as the St. Louis, Minnesota & Manitoba Railway Company with Mr. Hill as general manager. He became president in 1883.

Mr. Hill now proposed a railway from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Many thought him visionary. He paralleled the Northern Pacific which had been assisted by the United States government and the Canadian Pacific, which had received vast grants from Canada.

BUILDS GREAT NORTHERN.

Without one cent of State or government money, the Great Northern was constructed. Between 1880 to 1893 six thousand miles of track were built and equipped. It was built at the rate of nearly a mile a day for every day of Mr. Hill's control and extends from Lake Superior to Puget Sound.

In addition Mr. Hill organized a line to the Pacific and another to the Great Lakes, as feeder to his railway. His lake boats surpassed in speed and size any built before. Mr. Hill accepted no salary. While building up fortunes for himself and other shareholders he created more than a billion in realty values for settlers along his line.

Mr. Hill worked and studied constantly, until he was an expert in almost every phase of the agricultural, mineralis, water, population and resources of every part of the Northwest. He was singularly fellicitous in dealing with his employes and never had a serious strike.

In 1901, with J. Pierpont Morgan and others, Mr. Hill's Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railway became a large part of the stock of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, comprising nearly 9,000 miles of track. About the same time Edward H. Harriman and associates in the Union Pacific Railway acquired a majority stock of the Northern Pacific.

FOUGHT HARRIMAN.

A fight between the Harriman interests and the Hill-Morgan interests for the purchase of Northern Pacific common stock in the open market brought about the panic of May 9 1901, when the stock went to $1,000 a share, by reason of a "corner" to retire the Northern Pacific preferred stock the Hill-Morgan group, which controlled the common, won the fight.

Mr. Hill now organized and became president of the $400,000,000 Northern Securities Company, which was to take over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock of the Hill-Morgan group and also the Harriman holdings in Northern Pacific.

This resulted in a Federal antitrust suit. President Roosevelt ordered the government prosecutors to take action. The case was taken up to the Supreme Court in 1904, the combination was held illegal. The Northern Securities Company's stock holdings were distributed among the stockholders.

But the Great Northern and Northern Pacific continued to control the Burlington and all three roads prospered. The territory along their lines developed rapidly. Mr. Hill, never gave up his work on account of age and labored faithfully to the last.

The secret of his success lay largely in his ingenuity in devising and adopting standards for railway location, construction and operation. He revolutionized the American railway industry and brought costs of transportation by rail far below the level of foreign countries.

ART LOVER, PHILANTHROPIST.

He was a great believer in low grades, heavy power, large capacity cars and trainloads and he lived to see his principles universally accepted. In his later life, Mr. Hill was a great art connoisseur and throughout his career he found time for extensive reading. He had a fine collection of paintings of the modern French school.

His charitable gifts were many. He supported especially Macalester and Hamline colleges. His benefactions was attested in St. Paul Theological Seminary, an institution to train men for the Roman Catholic priesthood. Although Mr. Hill was not of that religious faith, he built this school and completely endowed it, at a cost of $500,000.

He married Mary Theresa Mehegan of St. Paul on August 19, 1867 and was the father of two sons, James N. and Lewis Hill, and five daughters. Both his sons are now prominent in the railroad business of their father.

YUAN SHIH KAI, President of China, who is seriously ill as the result of what is believed to have been a plot to take his life by poisoning.

Special to International News Service and London Times.

Tokio, May 29.—Reports to the Tokio Asahi from Peking state that the condition of Yuan Shi-Kai, President of the Chinese republic, is grave. He was taken ill Friday and cannot speak. It is suspected that he has been poisoned.

For many months Yuan Shi-Kai has been the storm centre of political trouble in the far Eastern republic. During this time he has made bitter enemies and his country has been torn with revolutions and unrest.

Yuan was inaugurated first President of China, October 11, 1913, after acting for several months as provisional President. His election came after centuries of dynastic rule. He was to serve a five-year term.

WAS NEVER CROWNED.

In August, 1911, talk of re-establishing a monarchy began. There was much opposition to this move at first, but in December the Council of State voted 2,042 to 1,993 in favor of a monarchy, and Yuan Shi-Kai was invited to be the emperor.

At first he declined to accept, but finally, under pressure from political leaders, acquiesced on condition that he remain President until a convenient time for the coronation.

Because of vigorous protests from Japan and Great Britain and the expression of displeasure of other powers, Yuan postponed the coronation indefinitely. On New Year's day Yuan sat on the throne, but he has never been officially crowned as emperor.

CAREER ACTIVE ONE.

Soon after the council voted for a return to the monarchy a serious rebellion broke out in the Southern provinces of the country. It spread rapidly and many of the republic troops joined the rebels. Quiet was partially restored, but political outbreaks have continued since.

Yuan Shi-Kai is regarded as one of the greatest men modern China has produced. At the age of twenty-six he made Chinese imperial resident in Korea. In 1907 he was Grand Councillor of the empire, and a year later under guardian of the heir apparent. The successful Manchu rebels elected him President in 1913. Yuan is fifty-six.

PATRICK LYNCH IS DEAD IN ROXBURY

Patrick Lynch of Laurel street, Roxbury, died at his home this morning. He was 86 years of age, and was the oldest attendant at St. Joseph's church. He had been a communicant of the parish for more than 50 years and many years ago assisted in digging the cellar of the original St. Joseph's church.

CARDINAL BLESSES CHURCH EDIFICE

Cardinal O'Connell administered confirmation to 175 boys and girls at St. Ambrose Church, Dorchester, and at the solemn high mass blessed the church, which is nearing completion.

The pastor is at Adams and Dickens streets and was established in St. Peters parish about two years ago.

The Misses and Mrs. Curley attended the service of blessing the church.

TWO VERMONT BOY CANOEISTS DROWN

Vergennes, Vt., May 29.—The bodies of two boys, Frank Laramy and Arthur James, were found in Otter Creek. They were found by searching parties.

An overturned canoe gave the first clew to the accident, which happened while the boys were proceeding homeward.

MEXICANS MENACE U. S. LINE

El Paso, May 29.—Mexican troops in large numbers, well supplied with artillery, are reported to be concentrating near El Valle, a little station on General Pershing's line of communications. El Valle is just half way between Colonia Dublan, the subbase of the United States punitive expedition, and Namiquipa, the present advanced base.

A few miles south of El Valle is situated Chocolate Pass. This is generally regarded as the weakest point in the whole line of communication. It is a narrow pass, flanked by abruptly rising hills, a gorge in the mountains, the estimate of the number of field pieces which General Trevino, the Mexican commander at Chihuahua City has sent to Ojo Caliente on the Northwestern railway, and via Villa Ahumada on the Mexican Central is placed roughly at twenty-five.

FIELD GUNS AT JUAREZ.

This information came to El Paso through private mining sources. It was promptly transmitted to General George Bell, Jr.

The mining men themselves took it seriously, and General Bell himself looked grave. He forwarded it to General Funston.

Another report told of the arrival of ten field guns at Juarez. This information came originally through railroad employes of the Mexican Central.

Of the twenty-five pieces of artillery which General Trevino sent north to Villa Ahumada, fifteen were taken off the train at Villa Ahumada and sent to El Valle with the column of General Francisco Gonzales.

HAVE JAPANESE GUNNERS.

The other ten were shipped to General Gavira to strengthen the Juarez garrison. There are two Japanese gunners with the artillery cohorts.

Army men generally take a serious view of the artillery movement of the Mexican forces in Chihuahua. They interpreted the news of these movements to mean that Carranza proposed to back up with a real show of strength the ultimatum speeding on its way to Washington.

Find Watertown Woman's Death Due to Dizziness

The mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Monte Illiste of Watertown, whose body was found in the Charles River, not far from her home, and within a short distance of a wrecked automobile, was solved when investigation showed that her death was due to accidental drowning resulting from a fall while suffering from a dizzy spell.

The wrecked machine was the property of Philip S. Goodnow of Rawson road, Brookline, a traveling man, Goodnow's first intimation of the supposed connection between his machine and the woman's death came when he read the papers.

He immediately told Chief Gilman of the park police that while going along Charles River road one of his rear wheels broke and threw the machine down the bank toward the river.

His story was corroborated by witnesses. It was then learned that Mrs. Illiste was subject to dizzy spells. Medical Examiner West, thereupon declared his belief that she fell to her death during one of these.

Charlie Brickley Reported Engaged to Agnes Coakley

Charles Brickley, captain of Harvard's whirlwind football eleven of 1914, was today reported engaged to marry Miss Agnes Coakley, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Daniel H. Coakley. The public announcement is to be made this week, according to the report.

Members of both families were grieved to hear that the report had become current before the formal announcement, although no denial was made of the probability of the formal announcement coming this week.

Brickley has been in the insurance business since graduating from Harvard. He is with the firm of Obrion

WORK HORSES TO PARADE TOMORROW

The work-horse parade tomorrow will be held on Commonwealth avenue and on Marlboro and Newbury streets, between Arlington street and Massachusetts avenue. The horses assemble at 9 a. m. and the parade will start at 9 a. m. The reviewing stand will be on Commonwealth avenue, near Berkeley street. The horses will proceed only a short distance from the reviewing stand to Arlington street, where they will be dismissed. The parade will be over by 1 o'clock or soon afterward. There will be opportunity to see the horses before and after the parade starts. The Boston Association has 400 of the old horses all be on Marlboro street.

LIFT SPRINGFIELD BAN ON SUNDAY 'GAS'

Springfield, May 29.—Springfield is no longer a "gasless" city on Sunday. After two Sundays of experience with a ruling that prohibited the selling of gasoline to motorists in any circumstances, Chief of Police William J. Quilty decided that the law permits the furnishing of the auto fuel and the making of slight repairs. The statutes prohibit the sale of gasoline, but at the same time the law also says that "no necessary work may be done on Sundays and it was because of this latter statute that Chief Quilty granted some twenty permits to garage owners.

Health Worry

only puts one further "under the weather." Often the best way out is to make a decided change in the daily diet, for sound health is largely a matter of selecting right food.

Active brains and vigorous bodies require wholesome, easily digestible food containing true nourishment, and it must include certain mineral elements, phosphate of potash, etc. These elements —lacking in many foods, but abundantly stored in the field grains—are supplied in splendid proportion in

PUSH CAMPAIGN TO RAISE CREDIT UNION $50,000 FUND

More than $25,000 still remains to be raised if the Massachusetts Credit Union's whirlwind campaign for $50,000 is to come to a triumphant close.

Nathan Fallinger, general campaign manager, is confident all else evidence success.

The regular army of volunteers, reinforced by a score of new captains, started out bright and early today to resume their campaign. Early indications are that today and tomorrow will be the most successful days in the campaign. It is freely predicted that there would be some interesting reports to be made by the captains tonight.

TASK AHEAD IS HARD ONE

It was learned today that many of the captains are withholding reports in order to create a little excitement during the last few days.

The funds raised will be used for a state-wide campaign of education to spread the doctrines and benefits of credit unions to assist in their proper and efficient organization, and thereby successfully promote and encourage thrift and eliminate usury.

The task for this week is gigantic, for the appeal is for more than one-half of the entire amount required in the remaining days of the heroic teacy campaign.

MARY ANTIN TO AID.

Arrangements are being fast completed for the mass meeting in the interest of the campaign to be held Thursday evening in Ford Hall. Mary Antin, author of "The Promised Land," will be the principal speaker. Miss Antin has wired the following message to the campaign committee:

Best wishes for an upsurge of the credit union idea. Debt is an impulse that sucks the life-blood of the poor and so depletes the vitality of the nation. The improvidence of the poor is a reproach, less to the workers who toil for small wages than to the community that fails to provide machinery for small savings. The Credit Union, by capitalizing character, insures a brotherhood of the rank and file. Civic leadership is a habit with the people of Boston.

Among the well-known captains who will report at today's luncheon were Judge Albert F. K. Cohen, Felix Vorenberg, Max Mitchell, Isaac Strauss and Haswell Copelof. Fred Vorenberg, chief of captains, will preside at the luncheon. These captains go after big subscriptions, where the other captains and team workers got only small ones.

OLDEST RAILROAD ENGINEER DIES AT 97

The oldest locomotive engineer in the country, Anthony Dyke, ninety-seven, who spent fifty-one years in engine cabs and resigned with a clean record, is dead at his home on Hancock street, South Braintree. Mr. Dyke was also the oldest member of the Odd Fellows' fraternity in this State. He retired as a railroad man when eighty-seven.

HOW GOOD THAT MUSTEROLE FEELS!

It Gets to That Sore Spot Like Magic.

A-a-h! That's delicious relief for those sore muscles, those stiff joints that lame back.

MUSTEROLE is so clean, white, ointment, made with the oil of mustard and other home simples.

It does the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, minus the plaster and minus the blister.

You simply rub MUSTEROLE on the spot where the pain is—rub it on briskly—and the pain is gone.

No muss, no bother. Just comforting, soothing relief—first a gentle glow, then a delightful sense of coolness. And best of all, no blisters like the old-fashioned mustard plaster used to make.

There is nothing like MUSTEROLE for Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Headache, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet and Colds of the Chest (it often prevents Pneumonia).

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

MRS. WARREN AIDS CHARITY

SOCIETY AT THE CHESTNUT HILL HORSE SHOW

MRS. FISKE WARREN.

She has accepted the position of treasurer of the Belgian Knitting Yarn Fund.

Mrs. Fiske Warren of Mount Vernon street has joined the ranks of the Boston society women—giving their services for charity. She has accepted the position of treasurer of the Belgian Knitting Yarn Fund, for which a two-weeks' sale of the Specialty Press's collection of war drawings, posters and prints will be held beginning tomorrow at the Doll & Richards Gallery.

Mrs. Warren has been called one of the most interesting of Boston's wealthy women. She is devoted to the Suffrage cause, is interested in single tax and finds time to entertain widely.

o o o

The society event of today was the Chestnut Hill Horse Show, which was inaugurated from patriotic motives of the Preparedness parade.

Among the young ladies showing horses were Miss Mabel Webster and her sister, Miss Mary Webster; Miss Adelaide Lee Mumford, Miss Alice Sargent, Miss Elsie Ames, Miss Elizabeth Sprague, Miss Eloise Sturgis, Miss Katharine Bremer and Miss Arline Brackett.

Richard M. Saltonstall and his two daughters, Miss Nora and Miss Muriel, and his son, Richard Saltonstall, also showed horses.

The judges were George F. Mandell, John P. Bowditch and A. H. Higginson, Mrs. William E. Cox and Colonel Edward D. Emerson.

Miss Isabella Mumford, Miss Eleanor Saltonstall, Miss Muriel Saltonstall, Miss Edith Parkman, Miss Mary Thayer and Miss Alice Elliott, Miss Elizabeth Sillsbee, Miss Grace Lockwood, Miss Nancy Barton, Miss Miriam Sears, Mrs. J. K. Howard and Mrs. George W. Scott will be the ushers at the Boston Opera House on Wednesday night.

The event is under the auspices of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness and contributions for the fund to send men to Plattsburg will be taken up.

The speakers will be W. Cameron Forbes, former governor-general of the Philippines; Governor Mc'all; Major-General Leonard Wood, George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia and Commander Robert Emmet Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tempest Walker of No. 219 Rawson road, Brookline, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hoopi, Walker, to Arnold S. Hoffman, son of Mrs. and the late William H. Hoffman of Providence, R. I.

o o o

The engagement of Miss Harriet Fuller Griggs to Hoyer Augustus Smith is announced by Mrs. Griggs's father, Thomas H. Griggs of Brookline. Mr. Smith is of Boston.

35,000 TO PARADE IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, May 29.—Society women will play a prominent part in the Preparedness Parade next Saturday. Mrs. H. Livingston Beeckman, wife of the governor-elect, Mrs. J. Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Lippitt, Mrs. Howard K. Hilton and Mrs. Martin S. Sweeney, chairman, vice-chairman, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the women's division, say they will march at the head of the column they believe will number 10,000. The women are working diligently each day in an effort to increase the number of women to "turn out" on that day. Colonel Harry Custer says 25,000 men are expected to parade.

GOOD GOVERNMENT MEN SCORE DILLON

In a letter to the Civil Service Commission the Good Government Association urges that body not to confirm the re-appointment of John H. Dillon, as head of the Park and Recreation Department. The letter charges Dillon of [illegible] ground, and assails his record and general fitness.

SALEM MAIL CLERK ACCUSED OF THEFT

Salem, May 29.—George W. Sothergill, thirty, a substitute clerk in the local postoffice, is under arrest charged with alleged larceny of money from the mails. It is learned that many complaints had been made of missing letters, and that postal agents had been investigating for several weeks.

Southerard will be taken to Boston for arraignment before United States Commissioner today.

FIRE DESTROYS PLYMOUTH BLOCK

Plymouth, May 29.—The Howland Block, on the corner of Court street and Shirley square, was practically gutted by fire. The loss will be over $50,000, according to fire department officials. Acting Chief Captain Albert Hiller was overcome by smoke. He was revived by a pulmotor. Many firemen were affected by the smoke.

Lightning Blinds Autoist and Three Die in Collision

By International News Service.

Paterson, N. J., May 29.—Blinded by lightning, Edgar Davenport of Franklin drove his automobile into an express train at Singtie. He was instantly killed, as were Isaac Feinbloom, thirty-eight, a clothing merchant of Hamburg, and an unidentified woman, members of his party.

Miss Alva Anderson of Paterson was taken to the Montclair Hospital, Montclair.

The accident happened on the Main Street crossing of the Glenwood Lake division of the Erie Railroad. The automobile party had spent the day in the country and while returning home were overtaken by an electrical storm.

The lightning dimmed the headlight of the engine. The thunder made it impossible to hear the train.

The automobile, running at high speed, crashed into the train. It was demolished and the occupants thrown high into the air. Joseph Runyon, the only witness of the accident, hurried to the assistance of the passengers. Miss Anderson was breathing and Runyon called an ambulance. She was found to be suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

SANITOL WEEK JULY 2ND

G. A. R. READY TO DECK GRAVES OF COMRADES

Every member of the fast thinning ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic who is physically able to report at his post headquarters tomorrow morning will be on hand to fulfill his self-imposed duty of decorating the graves of departed comrades.

On this the day of days for the old men who proudly wear the "little bronze button," the Sons of Veterans, Women's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans and Ladies of the G. A. R. will assist in the noble work.

In Greater Boston the day will be generally observed and thousands of people will be at the cemeteries to attend the exercises.

Under the auspices of Edward W. Kinsley Post, 113, exercises will take place in Tremont Temple at 10:30 a. m., to which the pupils of the public schools will participate, and a special musical program has been arranged for the occasion.

A choir of 100 girls of the Roxbury High School under the direction of Professor John O'Shea, and a chorus of 1,000 voices, will be one of the features. The ceremony of receiving the colors will be another feature of the day. All will assemble at headquarters at 9 a. m., and under escort of the Seventh Company, C. A. C., U. S. V., associate members and the Coast Artillery Corps Band, march to the soldiers' monument on the Common, where the usual exercises will take place. At the close the post will march to the Temple for the service. At the end of the exercises the post orders and decorate the graves at the various cemeteries during the day. At each cemetery addresses will be made to the members of the posts.

Services of impressive solemnity marked the memorial exercises held in the churches throughout Greater Boston Sunday by the various posts. Many noted speakers addressed the members who attended the services, the keynote of the addresses being patriotism.

Many of the posts were escorted to the services by detachments from military organizations, and there were special musical programs and singing by the church choirs, while the churches were decorated with the Stars and Stripes and beautiful floral pieces.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York at the opening, with the tone rather weak. Price changes averaged small but Willys-Overland opened with a four-point gain, while Continental Can declined a point. It soon recovered part of the loss. No clear was particularly active and the market was dull. There was more early business in railroads and coppers, however, than in munition stocks. Traders were disinclined to do much on the eve of a holiday. Chandler Motor was quiet, active and strong. It showed a three-point gain at one time. Sentiment did not change over Sunday. Very little market initiative is looked for until after the Republican National Convention.

Declines at 10:10 included Anaconda ⅝, Kennecott ⅜, American Zinc ⅝, Butte & Superior ¼, American Smelting ¼, Beet Sugar ⅜, Crucible Steel ⅝, Mexican Petroleum 2¼, Canadian-Pacific ¼, Erie ⅝, Northern Pacific 1 and Union Pacific ⅝.

Among gains were Baldwin ¼, Marine preferred ⅝, Inspiration ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅞, Studebaker ⅜, U. S. Rubber ⅝, Industrial Alcohol ⅜, Willys-Overland ¼ and Western Union ⅛.

Among unchanged issues were Canada Cement Foundry, U. S. Steel, Utah Copper, Studebaker and South Pacific.

At the end of half an hour the market had become a shade stronger. Chandler Motor was up 1¾.

The Boston market was very quiet at the start with few issues to show gains. A number were off and a number unchanged. Trading was narrow in all respects. American Zinc was the most active stock during the first few minutes. It was weak. Copper flange sold ex-dividend.

Among early declines were American Zinc ⅛, Butte & Superior ⅛, Isle Royale ⅛ and North Butte ⅛.

East Butte was up ¼ and among unchanged issues were Ahmeek, Calumet & Arizona, Copper Range, Utah Apex and United Shoe.

Nothing new was said this morning about the copper metal situation in this country. In London spot copper was further advanced 15, while electrolytic was unchanged. Spot tin was unchanged, futures were off 10s, and straits 5s. Lead quotations were unchanged. Spot spelter was off £10 and future £5.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Reading company has in the past five years earned available for dividends on the common stock an aggregate of $53,548,822, compared with dividends distributed of $25,900,000.

Charles M. Schwab said: "We are enjoying prosperity never dreamed of a few years ago. But while we are enjoying extraordinary prosperity, I believe we should make every effort to harbor our resources. It will not always be smooth sailing." Mr. Schwab said that the steel industry was the foundation of preparedness.

The Chesapeake & Ohio road carried in April 2,158,853 tons of coal, an increase of 490,689 over a year ago. For ten months ended April 30, total coal tonnage was 21,052,126, an increase of 4,295,370.

Greene Cananea Copper Company directors whose three-year terms expire this year are John D. Ryan, vice-president; Thomas F. Cole, president, and Joseph S. Cotton. The annual stockholders' meeting will be held June 19.

TOP OF HEAD A MASS OF SCALES

Took Form of Blisters. Hair Lifeless and Dry. Came out In Handfuls. In a Few Weeks

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was bothered with a troublesome itching on the back of my ears and on the top of my head, and it was soon followed by a general breaking out. The breaking out took the form of blisters spreading until they ran together and made a mass of scales on top of my head, and I constantly felt like scratching. My hair became lifeless and dry, and came out in large handfuls until there was little left.

"I tried many remedies but with no success for the eczema kept getting worse until I was ashamed to show myself. Then I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The eczema began to respond almost immediately to the Cuticura treatment, and in a few weeks I was entirely healed." (Signed) R. A. Snow, 843 Plymouth St., Bridgewater, Mass., Oct. 18, 1915.

PLAZA

CIRCUS IS HERE TO DELIGHT THOUSANDS

Lay-deeze and GEN-tel-men!

That national institution, Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, is on the old heath—on Huntington avenue for the week. Two performances daily, afternoon and evening.

The show got in yesterday afternoon from a Saturday in Pittsfield, and the first thing Colonel Dexter Fellows of the Publicity Department had to say to the horde of reporters and photographers who were waiting for him where the Red Wagon would have been if the show had arrived on time, had to do with the Grand Street Parade.

So we strolled around the lot, saw them putting up the Big Top and the Little Top, saw the troops of elephants file into the menageries behind Big Babe, their leader, saw the tiger and the lion and the monkey and the giraffe wagons uncovered, visited the stables and finally brought up at the Cook Tent, for an excellent dinner of steak, potatoes, vegetables, buttered toast, rice pudding and coffee.

There are 1,200 people with the circus, about one-third of them performers and the rest "hands."

Canvasmen and the like are selected because of their brawn and muscle and their desire to leave home and see the country. One of them, aged about twenty-five, was accosted in the menagerie. "Can you tell us where the tapir is?" he was asked. "I never heard of it," he said. The tapir was in the wagon back of him.

"About the only thing which has not increased in price in the past ten years," Colonel Fellows said, "is a circus ticket. Thirty years ago, when the circus traveling in thirty cars, the price of a ticket was fifty cents. Today we have upwards of 100 cars, but the price is the same."

"But perhaps the war has not affected the circus business," it was suggested.

"Ah!" said Colonel Fellows, but it has! For example, we are practically all out of snakes! Snakes and other circus animals come to the United States largely from Germany, and today they are not coming. One of our lady snake charmers told me, only the other day, with tears in her eyes, that she has almost lost interest in her Art as, one after another of her larger pets has been claimed by the Grim Reaper. All we seem to be able to get for her, under present market conditions, are young and small snakes, which the lady calls 'fives and tens.'"

Then there is the difficulty of getting German dyes, as a result of which the black stripes on the two zebras are fading into a sort of teal brown. You will notice in the menageries that the zebras are taking on a sort of brown and white, instead of black and white, effect.

One counted in the stables about 200 dapple gray draught horses, all young, sleek and fat. (There may have been more than 300 on 'em). The average value of these animals is $208. Ninety thousand dollars in this one item of circus cost!

The show was so late getting in that it was 5 o'clock in the afternoon before the circus smell was detected in the menageries. Then the lions began to roar, and the boys under twelve—there were 1,258,709 of them on the lot—stood transfixed for a moment and then put for home. Would you like the circus without the smell?

The most lovingest things in the menagerie are the four giraffes. Mary, Harry, Anna Louise and another. Mary is the mother giraffe of the lot. Anna Louise, born last January, is a baby giraffe, only eleven to twelve feet tall. The giraffes have to be petted. They turn their noses up at common hay or alfalfa, and they are the champion nose-turners-up in the world. No, sir-ree, Bob, a giraffe has to have clover hay. And its drinking water must be lukewarm.

One of the lions looks exactly like Richard Croker. Wouldn't you think it would be a tiger?

There were nineteen elephants in the tent and fifteen camels. They gave the camels water, so perhaps there isn't anything to that "nine days without" business.

There were not many performers in sight. Having struck a one-week stand, most of the people with the show had gone to nearby hotels to enjoy regular beds for six happy nights. Bulletins were in sight, nevertheless, advising the folks that their sleeping cars may be found on Boston & Albany tracks, at the corner of Burlington and Brookline avenues.

There are very few Yankee circus performers. Most of the acrobats, and such, are Swiss, Belgians, French and Germans. They decided, early in the season, to allow the war to be fought in Europe, so there is no bad blood in the dressing rooms.

There are also several Chinese with the show. There have been Japs with American circuses for fifteen years or more, but did you ever hear of Chinese circus performers?

Tents and harnesses are now made by the Barnum & Bailey people at Winter quarters in Bridgeport. The season being young, everything looks fresh, bright and newly painted.

Setting down on the lot was a lesson in Preparedness. There was no fussing, no bawling, no guess-work. Everybody had something to do and was at the right place at the right time to do it. Little Master John McLaughlin, having delivered the show in Boston, Wagon Master Tom Lynch saw that it was transported without mishap to the lot. Some of Mr. Lynch's drivers, handling the reins over six horses, were themselves as good as a show.

Animal Man John Patterson directed the cage-wagons to their places in the menagerie. When the loads were too heavy for horses he piloted Big Babe, the elephant, and Babe shoved the load with her forehead, as easy as anything. Meanwhile Charley Henry's men were getting a hot Sunday dinner ready for 1,600 men, women and children.

The Boss Canvasman is a Massachusetts boy, "Happy Jack" Snellen, of Marblehead. His was the big task of the day, getting the tops up. The Big Top is an eight-master. It will comfortably seat 14,000 people. Don't call "Happy Jack" the Boss Canvasman if you are talking to circus people. He "handles the rag."

Why "gray" horses?

One of the stablemen said because so much of the driving is done in the darkness of midnight.

The minute the tops were up, Snellen's men were digging little trenches around them, "in case of rain."

Mr. M'Cann is the New York Globe's pure food and factory expert, acknowledged foremost in America today.

LOOK REAL hard at these two pictures.

THEY SHOW you the last two stages STRAIGHTS go through before they go to your dealer. Do we err when we say "cleanliness" follows them right out of the door?

SO WROTE M'Cann after he had inspected the plant where STRAIGHTS are made. Read it carefully, gentlemen, and remember what he says when next you want a package of cigarettes.

CARRY INTO that cigar store or restaurant with you a mental picture of countless busy girls in freshly laundered caps and aprons supervising the work of the next-to-human machines which make STRAIGHTS.

ALL THAT we have set out to do, Mr. Smoker, is to plant two little seeds in your mind —that EGYPTIENNE STRAIGHTS are made of pure Turkish tobacco carefully selected and blended and that they are made in a plant that is a modern marvel of factory sanitation and manufacturing methods.

THINK a moment of the various views of that wonder factory which we have shown you from week to week. Here are two more glimpses, the room where STRAIGHTS are packed in cartons of twenty-five boxes each and the shipping room.

SHOULD YOU, Mr. Smoker, allow these seeds to take root and grow they will yield you good fruit. You will want STRAIGHTS. Every time you desire a cigarette a picture will rise before you of the STRAIGHTS factory, pure Turkish tobacco, Blending Board, M'Cann's endorsement and all the rest—and you will say to the person behind the "smoke" counter or to the waiter, "A package of STRAIGHTS, please."

TRULY, A desire born of confidence in the thing itself.

Next time you visit New York City we urge you to visit the STRAIGHTS' factory and see for yourself all that we have told you. Your name and address on a postal to the STRAIGHTS factory, 337-347 West 27th Street, New York City, will bring the card of invitation promptly.

Braves Must Brace Soon

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

This is rather an important afternoon for Boston and New York. The teams representing these cities in the National and American Leagues have been playing series and the New Yorkers have cleaned up. The Giants are out to make their run of consecutive wins read seventeen, if possible, that they may return to their home at the Polo Grounds with a clean record on the road, not to say anything of the chance they then have to tie one record and get closer to the best win ever made as referred to in an earlier edition.

The Giants are ready and eager for the battle and will see a pace hard to follow. They have been playing the kind of ball that cannot fail to win, hitting hard and timely and fielding with speed and accuracy. The team has gone into its stride along the path which leads to the top and is bound to land there.

SEES ONLY NEW YORK.

Figure the percentage in its favor from the coming home stay at the Polo Grounds plus the life, dash and confidence most strikingly displayed, and then pick out the one team that will outplay and outhit them. I can't see anything to it but New York, barring accidents to players. They look and play like a regular world's champion.

They are the class upon the heels of the Brooklyn club, and the Phillies are right at their backs, so the race looks pretty keen for big money in the East and plenty of excitement in the sport.

If the present team of Braves is the best team Manager Stallings ever brought up from the South in the spring, as he remarked upon a recent occasion, then here is going to be some fur fly pretty soon, for a team that has New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia to beat out for the title cannot lose any such games as have been lost in the present series with the Giants. The record of the Braves on their Western trip shows their relative strength against the Western clubs, and no one would pin much faith on that. The Giants are going to occupy the first division at the present moment, but later on there will be a fight for Western honors.

CUBS CLOSE AT HAND.

The Chicago Cubs are right after the Braves, having won two more and lost four more games than the Braves' games than Boston. This is a dangerous club, in fact Pittsburgh is about the only club that has given them trouble, and it gave the Braves enough to handle. A decided drag is due in the Boston outfit, and it may say overdue, so look out for trouble at Braves Field this afternoon if they meet the Giants. There is a row from Boston helped New York, this game could mean a clearing up. Mc-Graw. You can wager there will be plenty of fight in his team.

Over in New York the World's Champions have slipped badly. After four straight wins at home they dropped two in one day and tied the record of the Braves by being mowed out on Saturday. This is their opportunity to get a start before they return to Pennay Park for two games on Memorial Day with Washington and then two single games before their first Western trip of the season.

Today's game between the Braves and Giants will start at 2:30 o'clock, thirty minutes earlier than usual, in order to allow Johnny Meeran's fast-traveling band to make an early train for Philadelphia, where it plays morning and afternoon tomorrow. Manager Stallings intends giving "Pete" Compton a rest. With McGraw using a right-hander on the slab, which is likely, the Braves outfield will line up with Connolly in left, Collins in centre and Wilson in right.

BOX NEED TO WIN.

By winning today from the Highlanders they will again be upon an even keel in point of games won and lost, so with all their slipping they still have a chance to make good before taking the trip which will mean much to them. The champions have played in rather hard luck it would appear, but fortune is fickle, and if a club is to win, the boys must hit. Hits are the things that bring Dame Fortune.

Manager Carrigan's team leaves for Cleveland on the afternoon of June 2 for a series of three games with the Indians, getting there at a time when the excitement over the great success of that team is still intense. Cleveland will be up there at the top or close to it, so the crowds will turn out to watch the champions play with Speaker among the opposition.

The champions then move to Detroit, where they should be able to give a good account of themselves no matter what the result of the Cleveland series may have been. They have four games with the Tigers and then five with St. Louis Browns. Fielder Jones will give them a battle all the way for these. Chicago is the last stand with four games and the Champs return for a series with the Eastern clubs at home, beginning with New York on June 26.

Ed Walsh Slated for Umpire's Berth

One by one they're going back.

Donlin, Bresnahan, Rucker and Sullivan, Isbell, Bradley, Coughlin and Mullin and the host of other former greats will soon welcome new members into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Applications are now in from Napoleon Rucker, Brooklyn's once peerless southpaw, and Big Ed Walsh, of the White Sox, once master spitball artist.

Walsh's mighty arm has worked its last miracle in major company. The iron man is slated for an umpire's berth and next season may hear him calling balls and strikes in the American League.

Rucker has been placed on the disability list by Manager Robinson. Just a few days ago he went in against the Cubs. The old cunning was not there. The drop ball that made him famous was not in evidence. There was no zip to his fast one. He was knocked from the mound.

Rucker will never play minor league ball. He is interested in plantation in Georgia, and plans to devote his future to growing cotton. Walsh has been a White Sox for thirteen years. His arm failed him in the spring of 1913. Rucker joined the Dodgers in 1907.

SOCCER SHOTS

THE United Shoe team was forced to succumb to the Fore Rivers in the semi-final state cup game to the surprise of the fans. The losers played a hard game, but did not get any of the breaks of the game.

TOMORROW at Glen Essex, Law-rence, the final state cup game between Lynn Fosse and Fore Rivers will be staged, and with both teams playing in form, it will be well worth the journey to witness the scrap. This game will be called at 10:30 sharp.

GEORGE ELLIOTT, the regular right half of the Fore Rivers, will not be able to play for several perhaps for a good many weeks on account of a sprained ankle. Clawson will again fill in that position as he did it very creditably against the shoe team on Saturday.

FANS who do not care to make the trip to Lawrence to witness the state cup final will have the option of witnessing another big scrap, as it will be a fight to the bitter end, in the Lynn Merchants cup game at Conner street. The Central Maritime against the Lynn Hibs. Referee George Lambie will officiate. The game will start at 10:30.

IT is not very often that any club is called upon to play in two finals in one day, but such is the case with the Fore Rivers, whose second team will play the Clan Sutherlands at North Brighton on Decoration day at 2 p. m. for the Williamson cup.

* * *

PRESIDENT GIBSON of the Boston and District League will be the delegate in charge of the state cup final in the morning and the Williamson cup final tomorrow afternoon, this making a very busy day of it for one who is willing.

* * *

FANS are awaiting with interest the results of the three-day session of the U. S. T. A. It is rumored that First Vice-President Peel of Chicago will oppose President Kenly for the high office and that Secretary Cahill will not be re-elected without opposition.

AUTHORS OF THE 16 WINS

Anderson, the former Federal Leaguer, and Merritt, with four triumphs each, are Johnny McGraw's pitching toplimers in the Giants' current phenomenal streak of sixteen straight victories. Boston has won three games; Tesreau, hurt in last Friday's game, two, and Mathewson, Stroud and Schauer each one.

FIRST LEAGUE TO CEASE.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 29.—The Pennsylvania State is the first baseball league to take the count. Poor weather and miserable patronage caused its downfall. Harrisburg, Reading, Lancaster, York, Shamokin and Mount Carmel comprised the circuit.

SYRACUSE TO HIT ROAD.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 29.—The Syracuse University nine leaves on its last trip Friday, Saturday it plays at West Point, and then falls on Middlebury, Holy Cross and Springfield Y. M. C. A. College. Colgate calls here for the closing game, June 10.

21 STRAIGHT FOR N. Y.

New York, May 29.—No wonder the New York baseball fans are a gleeful lot. The Giants have reeled off sixteen successive victories, while the Yankees have bagged their last five games.

MOUNT FOR YANKEE.

New York, May 29.—Frankie O'Neill, the noted American hocker, will ride John Sanford's Snowden in the English Derby Wednesday.

Big Field Ready for Race on Speedway

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—Between twenty-one and twenty-five cars will get away tomorrow in the annual 500-mile automobile race at the local Speedway. Twenty-one cars already have qualified and several more will have taken their qualifying turns today.

The fastest lap made in competition was rolled yesterday by Johnny Aitken, when he sent his Peugot around the two and a half mile track in excess of ninety-six miles an hour. As usual, Barney Oldfield gave the crowd a thrill.

Harvard Gridiron Practice Called for September 7

VARSITY football practice will start at Harvard Thursday, September 7, with Field Coach Leo H. Leary in charge.

This is the earliest start the Crimson gridiron clan has ever made. With as many positions to fill next Fall, owing to the withdrawal of Captain-Elect Gilman and several other old stars from the university, as well as the graduation of Eddie Mahan, among other members of the crack 1915 eleven, Leary has deemed it advisable to order the early start.

Then, Harvard will play ten games next Fall, one more than its schedule has embraced of late seasons.

Sullivan Carded to Go Out Over Oakley Links

Two match play divisions started out this morning over the Oakley links in the first round for the Oakley and Handicap cups. These prizes were offered the golfers who qualified Saturday in the annual three-day spring meeting.

In the upper half there were three good matches, with E. W. Daley, Oakley, and W. H. Follett, a newcomer locally, forming the chief attraction.

F. H. Ives, Harvard, played against the Press tournament star, V. S. Lawrence. P. Goodale, Oakley, the 1916 net winner, opposed one of the so-called "ineligibles" in Massachusetts, J. H. Sullivan, Jr.

LEONARD DOWN TO TWIRL

Hon. Dutch Is Carrigan's Morning Pick for Slabwork—Yankee Understudies Shining.

New York, May 29.—Hon. Bill Carrigan's Hubites will engage the Yankees in the final game of their series at the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

The world's champions can be relied upon to strive desperately to annex the matinee, for they are bordering on the brink of the second division, and a few more setbacks will hustle them back among the Foolish Four.

The Red Sox have lost their last six games with the Yankees, a condition that has not existed since New York placed a team in the American League.

Whether Bill Donovan's hand will make it seven in a row depends upon the portside hurling of "Dutch" Leonard, who, although beaten in the opener, is carded to be sent back to the firing line by Carrigan this afternoon.

The champions have be unfortunate in colliding with the Yankees while the latter are in the throes of a batting Jubilee. Even Magee is hitting, and, when Lee is hitting, there is no reason in the world why the other Yankees should not hit, for Lee, up to the time Boston came to town had an undefeated batting average of something like .471.

Then, again, the Yankee understudies are playing a banging game, even better than could be expected were the regulars in the game. Baumann, subbing for Frank Baker, has hit harder and with more effect than the Home Run King, besides playing flawless defensive game.

Boone, at short, is fielding better than Pechinpaugh, and hitting better than Thayer ever could hope to hit. Then, even Fritz Maisel is not being missed.

Another instance of Boston's ill luck was the accident to Jack Coveleski recovered from a battered finger in time to send out a pinch hit Friday that won the game.

Then, George Mogridge is mending, and ere then expected and it would occasion little surprise if he were sent in against the Sox today. However, Caldwell is the logical twirler for Donovan.

Clarence Griffith Walker has impressed New York fancom favorably

RECORDS MAY GO AGAIN

Ted Meredith, Penn Flyer, After Honors in Two More Meets This Week.

By JOHN W. MORAN, Jr.

Having established world's records for the half-mile and quarter-mile, round a turn, during the course of the past few weeks Ted Meredith goes out next Sunday for the straightaway record for the quarter. He runs against Westmoreland Willcox, the Harvard flyer who pushed him for the record made Saturday, Homer Baker and Billy Moore, of Princeton. Moore was the winner of the 220-yards dash at the Stadium Saturday.

Tomorrow Meredith, with his teammates Kaufman, Lennon, Dorney and Scudder will run in the medley relay race at the Irish American A. A. games, Celtic Park.

The games next Sunday will be held at Sheepshead Bay in connection with the Liberty Day celebration. There is a strong chance that Riley Smith's mouth will also go in the double curlong straightaway.

TWO FOR EXPERTS

With the Intercollegiates now only a cherished memory experts have time to sit back and wonder just what happened to their theoretical winners. What was unquestionably the most severe blow of all came the way of the pickers in the running of the one mile race. Hardly a writer but what rode with Wilson of Leland Stanford to give him the race.

It wasn't hard to figure. Widnagle, Cornell, among the point winners, he being most generally rated third, but there wasn't a mortal who was willing to concede the Ithacan the first four positions in the event.

Those fourteen points were about equal home runs, so they counted them. Then when Smith beat Preble, California road runner, Leland Stanford, in the high hurdles another point or two went to Ithaca.

Eastern critics are forced to give Murray, the Leland Stanford hurdler, a word of praise as a result of his wins in both the hurdles. The tall timber topper fairly flew down the stretch in both events and was never bothered.

Few if any men have enjoyed the distinction of winning both the hurdles in the same afternoon, and when one stops to consider that this winner travelled all the way across the continent to achieve that fame the greatness of his feat is all the more apparent.

Because of Princeton proved a surprise in the furlong when he headed Moore in the final dash across the finish line. Harvard lost a chance to figure in this event when Eddie Teschner, a tenderfoot in century. Had Teschner been in the race and running up to form chances are he would have forced Moore into a record to win if he didn't win himself.

After watching the performances of Smith, Moore, Teschner and the others in the dashes, one is forced to lament the fact that Andy Kelly, the Holy Cross flyer, wasn't in the event. Had Kelly been in and up to his true form it seems certain that world's records would have been equalled, if not broken.

Intercollegiate competition loses a string of good men by graduations this coming month. Meredith drops out at Penn, Bill Bingham at Harvard and Joe Higgins at Holy Cross. These three are unquestionably the best half-milers in college competition today. Coaches have their work cut out to secure men to fill their places.

At Springfield, a week ago Saturday, there was much talk regarding a young fellow, who is at present in some Southern school who is capable of close to forty-eight seconds in the quarter at present.

His name is Sidney Hershair, and unless plans miscarry, either Charley Barrett or Frank Kanally will have him on their pond ere another season rolls around.

FLYERS RACE AT BEACH

Wiley, Didier and Walthour Clash in 25-Mile Match Tonight—Holiday Card a Gala One.

TONIGHT'S BICYCLE CARD.

Twenty-five-mile race: Starters, George Wiley of Syracuse, N. Y.; Leon Didier of Paris; "Bobby" Walthour of Atlanta, Ga.

Amateur and professional events.

A group of the world's foremost pace followers will compete in the bicycle season's banner events on the Revere cycle track tonight and tomorrow night.

The competition scheduled for Saturday night but which the rain spoiled, will be run off this evening. No changes will be made in the card. George Wiley, "Bobby" Walthour and Leon Didier clashing in a 25-mile motor-paced race, the feature attraction, with the usual set of amateur and professional races.

The holiday evening card is unusually attractive and unquestionably the best arranged thus far this season. The main event will be a 20-mile motor-paced race and will have contestants Wiley, Didier and Victor Linart, the world's middle-distance champion.

Tickets purchased for Saturday night's races hold good for tonight.

Columbia Sends Four Crews to Big Regatta

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 29.—The largest crew squad that Columbia has sent to Poughkeepsie in several years arrived at Kruse Elbow training quarters today. Enough men for four crews made the trip and of these sitting were freshmen. The cuts came by a ringbout with the four shells and Assistant Coach Plaisted, while the varsity men came with Coach Rice by train.

Few of the oarsmen have finished their examinations, but permission has been granted to them to take them at the training quarters. Because of the proximity of the race—June 17—and the unfavorable rowing water at Edgewater, N. J., the faculty decided it would be only fair for the Blue and White crews to finish the mental race in a more familiar setting than the classroom. The examinations will be given in the morning early so that the crews can row about 11 o'clock and again at 6 o'clock.

None of the other crews is expected before Saturday at the earliest. Pennsylvania probably will be the second to arrive on the scene of the regatta, then Cornell. Syracuse is not expected to get to its quarters at Highlands before Monday. Morton O. Hogue, chairman of the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, has not heard definitely from Stanford, although the coast crew has said that because of the loss of Stroke Jacomini it will not be able to make the trip East this year. Stanford's wonderful race last year caused the greatest surprise of the regatta.

FRANK KRAMER WINS TWO NEWARK RACES

Newark, N. J., May 29.—Frank Kramer, the world's champion cyclist, kept up his great work by defeating "Bob" Spears, the Australian crack, in straight heats in their two-thirds of a mile match race at the Velodrome. Kramer came back by finishing first in the five-mile invitation. Alfred Goullet, the Australian, won the two-thirds of a mile handicap, with Eddie Root second. Frank Cavanaugh defeated Marcel Dupuy of France in the Brassard match at one mile and Gus Lang annexed the two-mile open for amateurs.

West Plans New National Golf Association

Chicago, May 29.—Plans are underway for the formation of a new national golf association with pioneers over all players in the United States and equal representation of all State and regional associations.

That such is the case is given out by Horace P. Smith of Nashville, Tenn., a director and former president of the Western Golf Association, through Crafts W. Higgins of Chicago, assistant secretary of the Western Golf Association.

According to Mr. Smith the movement was started because of the refusal of the Massachusetts and other golf associations to obey the rule of the U. S. G. A. making Francis Ouimet and other golfers professionals because they dealt in golf and sporting goods.

HOLIDAY CARD FOR COMBINATION PARK

A 2-30 trot and a 2-20 trot or pace with a match race between Peter Confidence, Nut Axworthy and Lester W., comprises tomorrow's racing program at Combination Park, Medford. Contests will be limited to five heats. Racing commences at 1 o'clock. The card:

2-20 trot, one mile. Keynote, Bunsee, Ione Jr., Anna May, Dainty Gay, Christy Jr.

2-30 trot or pace, one mile. Early Boy, Little Gillig, Prodigal Strong, Criste, Lucky Clayce, Bunsee.

Match race, best three in five heats, one half mile. Independence, Nut Axworthy, Lester W.

NEXT, WELSH-LEONARD.

New York, May 29.—Tomorrow night the Curley-Pollock-McKittrick combination will stage its first show at Washington Park, the outdoor arena in Brooklyn. "Italian Joe" Gans meets Albert Badoux, the French champion, while Young Ahearn faces the Zulu Kid. Frank Kendal has been substituted for "Bill" Brennan to face "Tiger" Lucas, the Cleveland physician fighter.

ROAMER GOING TO OLD KY.

New York, May 29.—Andrew Miller's Roamer, after a mile and one-quarter workout in 2:08 at Belmont Park, will probably be sent to Louisville for next Saturday's Kentucky Handicap, which has an added value of $10,000, instead of starting in the Suburban.

AARON D. WELD IS NAMED

Aaron D. Weld, '18, of Boston, has been appointed second assistant manager of the Harvard tennis team, and Richard van W. Buel, of New York, manager of the second team.

DAN WAS A BUSTER.

Thus the baseball writer spoke
With a heavy sigh.

"Daniel in the Lion's Den
Was a lucky stiff!"
Thus the baseball writer spoke
With a weary sob.

"Daniel in the Lion's Den

Thus the baseball writer spoke,
Tears upon his cheek.

"Daniel in the Lion's Den

Thus the baseball writer spoke,
Spreading tears around.

"Daniel in the Lion's Den,
O! the lucky chump!
Never traveled with a team
In a batting slump."

We have seen card sharps in our day who could shuffle a deck of cards and could shuffle a batting order as fast as Clarence Rowland.

A few soothing words to the other National League clubs: Two weeks now John McGraw's team was the joke of the National League. Nobody in the league can see the joke today but John McGraw.

Hamid Kaiti Pasha breezed into the office looking for information.

"What's the name of this hick town where White and Welsh are going to put on their stuff?" he asked.

"Buenos Aires?" you mean.

"Yes, that's the place: Buenos Aires."

"Are you figuring on perpetrating wrestling there?"

"No, but I was just wondering if they were going to run a special train up there."

SIGNS.

I know that summertime has come,
Though tricold is the air,
For even now that meets my eye
There is a large and active guy
In porous underwear.

Perhaps the second climb of the year to the roof garden has been left to couple that John McGraw has a fine team and that everybody else is in the cellar.

The ball team has John McGraw.

MAY.

It is the gladdest month of all the year
When blossoms blaze and violets take root,
And, enchantingly, skies are bright and clear.

I only wish I owned a diver's suit.

The Finn Carries 127 Pounds in Turf Classic

New York, May 29.—Andrew Miller's Roamer, considered a doubtful starter, has been assigned top weight in the Suburban Handicap, at a mile and one-quarter, which will be run tomorrow at Belmont Park.

Fifty-three thoroughbreds have been nominated.

H. C. Hallenbeck's The Finn, winner of the Metropolitan Handicap, will carry seven pounds more than he carried when he won last Thursday, and shares the honors of second on the list with H. P. Whitney's Borrow. The weights follow:

REVERE MAN SAYS NOW DEE-LIGHTED

Charles E. Frye, of 35 Hyde St., Says Plant Juice Made A New Man of Him.

No new article of the times has created such a profound interest, especially with invalids, often, as has the introduction of Plant Juice, the new herbal tonic. People in all walks of life have been attracted by it, the statement of a financial man, mechanic, financier, lawyer, society woman, etc., who have all tested it and permitted the use of their names in letting it go.

Every day local people are coming forward with unsolicited statements regarding the benefit they have received from Plant Juice. Recently, Mr. Charles E. Frye, who lives at No. 35 Hyde street, Revere, Mass., and is employed as night watchman by one of the largest firms in the city, said:

"For the past seven years I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, and all the food I ate would ferment in my stomach and cause gas to form and I was all bloated. I suffered on a light stomach ache and felt weak and miserable. I had pains around the heart and sensation, headaches and dizzy spells. I bloated up to 15 pounds heavier than I am now. My liver was torpid and sluggish and my kidneys were affected. I was told that I had gall stones and gastritis, and all the remedies I took did not do me a particle of good. I heard of Plant Juice and at last decided to try it. These bottles have put me in fine order. I can eat anything I want and digest it, am not nervous, the bloating I suffered from is gone and my waist reduced to 44 inches. Plant Juice has made a new man of me and I am only too glad to recommend it."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

The Struggles of a Wife

Grace Meets Some of the Young People at the Hotel and Goes on a Ride With Dayton.

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

(Copyright, 1916, by the Ridgway Company.)

It took a few days for Myra to accustom herself sufficiently to her new surroundings to settle down to regular work.

She did not know how she was really too tired to concentrate her thoughts on any task. It writing, and she was puzzled at the paucity of ideas.

"I feel as if I had run an original thought to earth, Mr. Dayton," she said laughingly to Grace.

But although she might doubt, she was a bit worried at her dissipation to apply herself to any set task.

Grace, however, came to under the new conditions as a settled lower comes up when it has received the plentiful rain. She even told her mother that she was glad that the latter was not eager to write at once, as it would be so much pleasanter if they could go about a little together.

"I have watched you so much," Grace added, "that I am only too well aware that as soon as you go get those ideas you are seeking you will shut yourself into your room for hours at a time and pound away at that old machine. But I hope that by then I will have met some of the young people here."

By the end of three days she had met them. Mr. Dayton had introduced her to Sylvia Alnslie and the girl and man with whom she had been on the evening of the Webbs' arrival. Other introductions followed, and in a week Grace was on speaking terms with most of the hotel guests.

MYRA HARD AT WORK.

And to the end of that week Myra had, as she expressed it, "found herself again," and was once more to take up her work. Yet she was still so tired that it required an effort to drive her to her desk each day; but once there she forgot all else until her daughter's entrance at 1 o'clock warned her that it was time to get ready for luncheon.

She was a little surprised to note that although Grace had been introduced to so many of the young people she did not become particularly intimate with any of them.

She seemed to prefer taking a book out into the grove near the house to sitting on the veranda talking the light nonsense in which most of the girls indulged in the evening who would watch the dancing through the open door of the room windows, but seldom accepted an invitation to dance.

"I am not sorry for that sort of thing," she told her mother once in reply to some comment on her withdrawal from such things. "I came here to recuperate and to get strong enough to go back to work in the Fall. Moreover, mother, I have to dancing frocks with me."

This last fact was true enough, Myra reflected. She understood perfectly that among this bevy of over-dressed girls Grace must feel like a dove among birds of prey.

is here with

Ethel Barrymore

in her great comedy success, "Our Mrs. McChesney," now at the Hollis St. Theatre.

Heatherbloom Petticoats made the play possible and set the fashion for all women of discriminating taste.

See the play at the Hollis Street Theatre and see the display at the leading Boston shops. Insist upon the label.

But she could not allow Grace to sacrifice herself entirely to her mother's convenience. Had Myra suspected, she now told herself, that the dressing at this summer resort would be as elaborate as in the height of the season in the city she would have strained a point and bought some new gowns for Grace, in spite of the girl's expressed request that she refrain from doing this.

GRACE IS WELL LIKED.

Yet she observed that the young men who were really worth while sought Grace out and seemed to enjoy talking with her. To be sure, there were few men of this type at The Heights, but Dayton was surely one of that kind, and it was evident that he liked Grace, even though he did seem to be paying special attention to pretty Sylvia Alnslie. Yet, Myra mused, could her beauty compensate to him for her lack of intellect?

For the matron already discovered that while Sylvia had an appealing manner with men, this and her undeniable beauty were all that could attract them. Surely as sensible a man as Henry Dayton must find Grace a pleasanter companion than a silly creature like Sylvia Alnslie, who, apparently, regarded him as her especial property.

Myra suggested this to Grace, but the girl's reply gave no evidence of her inner sentiments on the subject.

"Miss Alnslie is so pretty that all men admire her," she affirmed. "And of course she likes Mr. Dayton, for he is a pleasant enough fellow."

The tone was almost too indifferent to be natural, the mother fancied, but a glance at the girl's frank eyes disabused her mind of the suspicion.

A JOLLY LITTLE GIRL.

"You see so much more of them than I do that you can judge better than I if he likes her," Myra ventured.

Grace shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, as for that," she remarked, "she is a very jolly, frisky little girl from the Middle West, and has a way that takes with the New York society men, and it is but natural that he should care to take her motoring, etc., for the way he wants you and me to go for a drive with him tomorrow afternoon."

Mrs. Webb, who was always in her chagrin, Grace insisted on sitting in the back seat with Mr. Dayton, finding her obstinate in this decision, took on the front seat with him a young fellow from New York, with whom he happened to be acquainted. So the young couple had no chance for the tete-a-tete that Myra had hoped they would have.

She tried to console herself with the recollection that Grace and Dayton often played tennis together, for Grace was an excellent player. Then she chided herself for her ridiculous match-making thought. She did not want to be a match-maker, and, anyway, young Dayton was probably already in love with pretty, restless Sylvia Alnslie.

Later as her work became more absorbing, she settled down to it and let Grace spend her days as she liked. Nevertheless her heart yearned over her child. She longed unspeakably to have her happy.

To Be Continued.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

JEALOUSY AND LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going out with a girl for four months, and almost since the day I met her she has been trying to make me jealous.

I would be very grateful to you if you could explain her reason for acting this way. R. J. H.

TRUE love is above suspicion and selfishness and the jealousy consequent upon these unworthy emotions. But most of us are not big enough and fine enough for true love, so jealousy creeps in. Since this girl is, like you, of a jealous nature, she is probably trying to prove your feeling for her by the amount of suffering it causes you to hear of her other interests. Tell her very gently that you care for her and that it is not necessary that she tell you of other admirers in order to assure herself of your feeling for her.

HAS TREATED YOU UNFAIRLY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young girl ten months ago and learned to like her. I persuaded her to improve her education in English and music, for which she has a talent; she accepted it and I started to help her with expenses.

After eight months I told her my intentions, but she said she did not care for me. Will you advise me if you think I have any hope to win her heart? HEARTBROKEN.

You had best discontinue your acquaintance with this girl; she certainly had no right to let you pay for her education, and now that she has told you she does not care for you, both family and propriety demand that you discontinue your friendship.

Fashion Delights for Joy of Milady

Dainty Confections in Shimmering Fabrics for Summer Days

So bewildering is the display of Summer frocks and their accessories this year that one can hardly make a selection. Dark blue charmeuse fashions a serviceable street dress and is trimmed with stitched embroidery in bright colors. The gown opens in a novel way over a sheer batiste vestee.

A Summer evening wrap, very lovely, indeed, combines brocaded silk and Georgette crepe flounces at shoulder and knee, and is tied at the neck with long velvet ribbon. All in light tones of blue, gray and charteuse.

Embroidered lawn, edged with Valenciennes lace and combined with wide tucks, makes a very attractive frock for garden parties. Under the skirt of this frock, and also here and there on the waist, is run cornflower blue ribbon. The orange linen hat shown with this gown is hemstitched twice around crown and brim in black, and has a wide black velvet band around crown which terminates in a long streamer.

A black net dress has a black silk bodice, which is trimmed with a wide band of white beads; white beads also band the wide skirt.

The Wonders of Sight

Notable Differences in the Eyes of Humans and Other Animals

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A CORRESPONDENT asks me to explain why one gradually begins to discern things in a dark room, and why cats and other animals can see in the dark as well as in the light, and why owls cannot see at all in the light.

Here is a subject which affords one of the strongest arguments that can be adduced from nature in support of the hypothesis of a conscious, intelligence designing and controlling all things; or, in other words, a Creator who, with purpose, and in detail, shaped the world and its inhabitants.

A part of these things we can explain, but another very important part remains mysterious, although the method of operation is usually clear enough. All the advances of science are in the direction of what may be called a mechanical explanation of nature. The machinery we can understand, but there is something in, or behind, the machinery which escapes our grasp.

Sight depends upon an effect produced by waves, or rays, of light impinging upon a nerve screen, called the retina, which is placed in the back of the eye, communicating with the brain. We can make an artificial eye, consisting of lenses concentrating the rays of light, as the lenses of the eye do, but we cannot make an artificial retina.

Even if we could we would simply be imitating what had previously been done by some power or cause, which would seem to have acted toward a definite end, guided by more than human intelligence, and knowing beforehand what the result would be.

We do not know whether the retinas of the eyes of all creatures are equally sensitive to the rays whose impressions produce what we call light. We only know that a certain intensity of radiation is necessary in order that our eyes shall be thus affected.

A part of these things we can explain, but another very important part remains mysterious, although the method of operation is usually clear enough. All the advances of science are in the direction of what may be called a mechanical explanation of nature. The machinery we can understand, but there is something in, or behind, the machinery which escapes our grasp.

Sight depends upon an effect produced by waves, or rays, of light impinging upon a nerve screen, called the retina, which is placed in the back of the eye, communicating with the brain. We can make an artificial eye, consisting of lenses concentrating the rays of light, as the lenses of the eye do, but we cannot make an artificial retina.

URGE SENATE TO KILL POSTAL GAG ON PRESS

By International News Service.

Washington, May 29.—The United States Senate this week will enact into law or kill Section No. 7 of the Postoffice Appropriation Act, declared by Congressional experts to be one of the boldest attempts to muzzle the press of the country ever brought forward in legislative history.

The bill passed the House and was referred to the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads.

Its final passage and approval by President Wilson will place in the hands of Postmaster-General Burleson a political club which can be wielded against every publication in the United States.

This is what the "joker" in the bill provides:

1—That present lawful stipulations with regard to the shipment of magazines, periodicals and newspapers be removed and their manner of future shipment by freight or regular mail be placed at the discretion of Postmaster-General Burleson.

2—That the Postmaster-General's order with regard to the handling of such magazines, periodicals and newspapers shall be final as well as discretionary in regard to the routes laid out.

WOULD ACT AS GAG.

This means Mr. Burleson, close friend and adviser of the Wilson administration, may exercise his power to kill absolutely the business of unfavored publications by discriminating against them in the matter of mail routes.

He can, at the command of politicians, order a publication unfavorable to the reigning administration to forward its printed matter to its subscribers by freight while an identical rival publication is allowed the faster distribution of the regular mails.

Such action would effectually gag any magazine or newspaper. It would bring about the scandalous loss of circulation and possible financial ruin.

This intent is denied by officials of the Wilson administration but newspaper and magazine publishers point out that the bill, if enacted into law with its present jokers, will take effect on July 1, 1916, in ample time for use during the coming presidential campaign.

CLAUSE EXACTED IN 1913.

It is pointed out that political preferment against American publications unfriendly to Washington officials already is a matter of record. In 1911 Postmaster-General Hitchcock is alleged by the Review of Reviews Company to have discriminated against its publication by putting in effect the arbitrary power which the present postoffice bill would confer upon Mr. Burleson.

The Review of Reviews was unfriendly to the Taft administration. It was ordered to forward its publication by freight, while rival magazines were allowed distribution through the regular mails.

Suit was filed in the United States Supreme Court for relief.

The agitation resulted in enacting into law in the Postoffice Appropriation Act of 1913 a clause that forbade extension of the existing freight routes for magazines and took away from the Postoffice Department its power to discriminate in the matter of shipment.

PROTEST TO WILSON.

It is this clause which the bill now before the Senate seeks to repeal.

Protest already has been made to President Wilson and to Senators by the foremost publishers of the country and prominent educators.

A committee from the Periodical Publishers' Association of America, headed by Cyrus H. K. Curtis of the Saturday Evening Post, has waited upon the President in the interest of fair play.

The President and members of Congress have been told that approval of the bill, with its joker, will be a great blow to the freedom of the press.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED.

The following resolution has been adopted by the Periodical Publishers' Association:

Resolved, that members of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America hereby protest against the passage of Section 7 of the Postoffice Appropriation Bill in view of the fact that the serious difficulties and delays now suffered under the so-called "blue tag system" (limited freight shipments of press matter) which at the present time is operative only in a limited section, and only applies to certain publications, would be vastly increased by the inclusion of territory covered by it and the inclusion of additional classes of publications, and

Furthermore, that no public official of the Postoffice Department should be given such discriminating power over private interests as will enable him to place one publication at such a disadvantage with another as will be of incalculable injury to the publication against which such discrimination is made.

Copies of this resolution have been forwarded to President Wilson and members of Congress.

COMMERCE BOARD FIGHTS SHIP BILL

The Boston Chamber of Commerce will protest against the Government ship bill at hearings this week before the Commerce Committee of the United States Senate, to which committee the bill has been referred. Winthrop L. Marvin and Edward F. Blodgett, members of the Chamber's Committee on Merchant Marine, will present the attitude of the Chamber.

PANAMA CANAL TO OPEN NEXT FALL

Kingston, Jamaica, May 29.—Major-General Goethals, on his way to New York, said he expected the formal opening of the Panama Canal to take place next Fall. The West Indians who helped build the canal and wish to return to their native land, he said, will be repatriated.

A Jacksonian and Roosevelt Plan to Safeguard Our Neutral Rights

CONGRESSMAN PETER F. TAGUE of Boston has introduced a resolution in Congress providing that the United States mails between this country and the neutral ports of the world shall be conveyed in the armed ships of our navy.

There is a reason for this resolution. The British government has assumed, without right and without precedent in international law and without decent respect either for this nation or for other neutral nations, to interfere both with our mail and with the mail of the other neutral nations.

This country has enforced against Germany the claim which the President set up against the use of the submarines which Germany regarded as vital to the successful prosecution of her conflict with Great Britain. The President and the national administration acknowledge that in principle the violation of our rights by the British interference with our mail is no less flagrant. It certainly has less excuse in military necessity than the German use of their submarines. There has, however, been a marked difference in the vigor of the prosecution by our national administration of our demands for fair and respectful treatment by both belligerents. We have entered upon a course of procrastinating negotiations with Great Britain concerning this violation of our rights. Apparently no progress has been made toward a settlement of the controversy.

Now Congressman Tague has conceived a way in which an issue can be very promptly forced in this situation. By his resolution he calls upon the government to send our mail in our warships with our flag at the masthead. THEN LET THE BRITISH ATTEMPT TO SEIZE THAT MAIL IF THEY CARE SO TO DO.

This would be the Jacksonian way of dealing with such a question. It would be the Jacksonian way of SETTLING the question. This method of conducting diplomatic negotiations made Andrew Jackson the most successful diplomat this country knew between the Revolution and the Civil War. This method is also the Roosevelt method of conducting negotiations. It is the way former President Roosevelt would have SETTLED THE CONTROVERSY LONG, LONG AGO. It is the way of dealing with questions so decisively that they do not have time to get a hot box and become dangerous.

It is only by paltering with embarrassing situations that we make them dangerous. There cannot be the least doubt in the world that if our mail were sent in a battleship the British government would very courteously and discreetly let it entirely alone. Then there would be the end of the controversy.

Mr. Tague's resolution is statesmanship. The administration will do well to heed Mr. Tague's suggestion. Mr. Tague has a just conception of real neutrality, for it is not real neutrality to demand our rights vigorously against one belligerent and meekly against another.

An Efficient Vigilance

Watchful Citizens Have Defeated the Corporation Drive at the Public Service Commission

THE attempt by the corporations to destroy the Public Service Commission because it could not be relied upon to rubber-stamp their wishes has finally and definitely failed, at least for this legislative session.

It was a bold and reactionary conspiracy which was well under way before the AMERICAN discovered it. A lot of Republican members in the Legislature who think more of pleasing their lobbyist masters than they think of promoting the welfare of their party came very near making this scheme a party measure. Fortunately for the Republican party in this State that plan was abandoned before it became public.

There are many sturdy citizens in this Commonwealth who deserve a second thought from us on account of the assistance which they have rendered in the hard work necessary to preserve the independence of this powerful and semi-judicial commmission established to control the public service corporations. Among these citizens are Joseph Walker, Edward A. Filene, Ralph S. Bauer, George W. Anderson and Benjamin C. Lane, together with H. H. Wilson, H. T. Drew, Waldo D. Phelps and Walter L. McMennimen, legislative representatives of the railroad employees and trainmen; John E. Macy, William J. Paul and George E. Richards of the United Improvement Association, George F. Washburn, president, and the directors of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, and Chairman Hubbard and the members of the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The defeat of this nefarious attempt to destroy honest regulation of the public service companies is evidence of the power of vigilance to preserve honest government. There are very few corrupt and harmful schemes which could succeed in Massachusetts if our prominent citizens were always vigilant, independent and public-spirited.

We wonder how many readers of the AMERICAN realize how much work a newspaper has to do in order to render a public service such as was rendered by the defeat of this plan to destroy real regulation of the public service companies in Massachusetts. The AMERICAN is trying to do such things all the time. Its great circulation indicates that the public appreciates it.

The ambitious young man who wants to rise in public life, if he is inclined to give weight to other considerations than that of his duty, ought to appreciate that these are days of broadening public intelligence, in which a more and more discriminating public is every day better able to distinguish the sheep from the goats and separate the wheat from the chaff. No man has succeeded in Massachusetts during the last decade in any election throughout the State who has not convinced the people that he was a man of progressive and independent tendencies.

More Truth Than Poetry

Hist!

"Sometimes when I am most beset I seriously think of renting a pair of whiskers."—President Wilson.

BE careful, Mr. Penrose, Mr. Root and Mr. Crane,
When in the Old Back Room you meet to plot the Fail campaign!
That fellow in the shadow there you think it's Uncle Joe;
But don't leave anything to guess; it's safer far to know!
Choke Penrose off; soft pedal Crane; tell Barnes that he must hush!
It might be Mr. Wilson with a temporary brush!

BE wary, learned Justices! The Judge in yonder chair,
Who tugs his lacy lambrequins with that distracted air
And listens with an eager ear to your assorted views,
You fancy in your innocence is Mr. Justice Hughes.
Perhaps it is. But on your minds let this shrewd hunch impinge:
It might be Mr. Wilson in a rented set of fringe.

AND have a care, you Senators, before you talk too much
About your legislative plans, the Brandeis case and such.
The dark alfalfa'd visage which is looming to the right
Might grow on Henry Cabot Lodge, but, mind, it only might!
Let not mere facial furbelows, however bright their lustre,
Conceal a President who wears a borrowed feather duster.

War and the Birth Rate

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART II.

THERE has been a frightful slaughter of fathers and potential fathers in the European war, so that the full and unmitigated effect of war on the birth rate has now had time to display itself, with the astonishing and agreeably disappointing result that the figures show a falling off only of 10 to 15 per cent. after more than a year and a half of the bloodiest war in all history. Only a little greater than has been recorded in the years following any severe industrial crisis or period of hard times. What makes it still more surprising and apparently detached from war influences as such is that the fall of the death rate has been almost as great in volunteer England, with only about twenty per cent. of her adult males on the firing line, as in conscription Germany, with over forty per cent. of her male population in the army.

Not only so, but in several districts in England, which have become extremely prosperous from the huge boom in manufacturing ammunition and army supplies and the high wages paid, there is actually a slight increase in the birth rate and a distinct increase in that even more delicate barometer of financial conditions, the marriage rate per thousand. And a somewhat similar result is actually reported from similar industrial communities in Germany. The very latest report from the English health authorities shows that the marriage rate for London is the highest in forty years (since 1876), due to the number of women earning good wages in munition and other factories who are marrying disabled and blinded and crippled heros in a fervor of patriotism and devotion.

So curiously and mercifully feeble appears to be the influence of the war god upon the ebb and flow of the great tides of human life. With all the deadly completeness of universal military service, it still takes and will always take at least three men at home on the farms, in munition plants and on the railroads (Lloyd George says three men and four women at work) to keep one man at the front, while the strange and dreadful stresses and geographical permanence of trench warfare render regular and frequent furloughs home not merely possible, but necessary for the fighters.

Sea Madness

By Jane McLean

THERE is no mood that mortals know,
From human joy to human woe,
That cannot trembling come to be
In answering echoes from the sea.

He who is torn with wanderlust
And gives the waves his hopes, his trust,
May dream of conquests in his sleep
And track new pathways on the deep.

Fear of the pulling tides may find
A lodging in a craven's mind,
But depths of awe and mystery
Awake in him who loves the sea.

The rapture of the ocean's breath
Can make a thing divine of Death,
A romance of the wave's embrace,
A glory of the sea's wet face.

How Astronomers Find Distance of Stars a Trillion Miles Off

It Is as Simple in Principle but Not So Easy in Practice as to Ascertain the Height of the Loftiest Mountain Without Going Near It

By Garrett P. Serviss

"YOUR article on the other universes outside our star cloud conveyed to me one of the most inspiring discoveries in astronomy, and prompted me to probe more deeply. How have they been able to measure the size of the cloud on the outskirts of our universe, and the distance of the spiral nebulae, 20,000 to 30,000 light-years away?—E. H."

THE principle underlying these measurements and estimates is very simple, but its practical application is one of the hardest things that man has undertaken to accomplish.

The improvements in astronomical photography during recent years have greatly aided. Advances are also continually made in the perfection of instruments, and in the training of observers. It is not only war machines and fighters that are growing more effective. Science is improving its implements and methods, and extending its fields, as rapidly as industry and commerce are doing those things. But its hoards of accumulating knowledge are brighter than vaults full of gold, and will last longer.

The principle on which the measurement of the universe depends is no other than that which the surveyor uses on the earth. It rests upon lines and angles. In the Himalaya Mountains the height of the loftiest mountain on the globe has been ascertained by observers who were never within a hundred miles of its foot. They did it by observing angles and then making easy trigonometrical calculations.

Snowy deserts, icy gulfs and slippery precipices prevented them from approaching the great peak, but a mathematical rule carried them across. They measured a "base line" and took the angles of the lines-of-sight from each end of the base to the mountain; the rest they figured out in their notebooks.

To get the height it was only necessary to take other angles, and do a little more figuring. Such things are among the great romances that make the life of an exploring engineer as fascinating as that of far-wandering Ulysses.

But the astronomer has to go infinitely farther afield. His celestial Himalayas, and star-pointed peaks, are separated from him by gulfs of space billions of miles across. He could never measure their distances, or estimate their magnitudes, if the earth stood fast. A base-line as long as the whole diameter of the globe would be of no more use to him than the breadth of a pin's point. But nature has contrived opportunities for man to exercise his skill and his intelligence.

The motion of the earth around the sun, in an orbit about 186,000,000 miles across, furnishes such an opportunity to the astronomer. He takes the breadth of the earth's orbit for his base-line. In six months the earth carries him and his angle-measuring instruments from one end of that line to the other. He has, then, only to observe, at intervals of six months, the star whose distance he wishes to ascertain, and, unless the star is excessively distant, he gets angles that he can measure. The rest is, in principle, as easy as the calculations of the surveyor who measures terrestrial distances.

But notwithstanding the enormous length of his base-line the astronomer finds that the angles with which he is concerned are extremely minute. For technical reasons he takes half the total length of his base-line, or the distance of the earth from the sun as his basis of calculation, and the largest angle, called the "parallax," which the nearest star then affords him is only about three-quarters of a second of arc. (1 e., about one 2,400th of the angular diameter of the moon.

If you will try to measure the angle between two lines drawn from your eye to the opposite sides (not ends), of a lead pencil more than a mile away, you will get a vivid idea of what the astronomer has to do when he measures the parallax of the nearest star, Alpha Centauri. From that parallax he calculates the distance of Alpha Centauri to be 4 1-3 light-years, one light-year being 5,560,000,000,000 miles.

But the astronomer's mathematical sounding-lines go vastly deeper than that into the gulf of space. He has measured with considerable certainty star parallaxes of only one-twentieth of a second of arc, corresponding to a distance of sixty-five light-years. Still, the vast majority of the stars lie far beyond that stupendous distance and for their distances he can, at present, depend only upon estimates, based upon their relative brightness.

Taking the stars by wholesale, it is almost certain that their distances varies inversely with their brightness, the fainter ones, not in individual instances, but upon the average, being farther away than the brighter ones.

In this way estimates have been made showing that the most distant stars that a powerful telescope reveals may be as much as a thousand light-years away; in other words, that if they were suddenly extinguished a thousand years would elapse before the last ray of light that had left them reached our eyes. Some, indeed, may be even much farther than that.

The estimates of 20,000 or more light-years for the distance of spiral nebulae lying beyond the borders of our universe, or starry system, are based upon similar considerations and not upon parallax measurement.

The calculation of the size or actual brightness of a star is as simple in principle as that of its distance. If its parallax has been ascertained, we know its distance; then it is only necessary to compare the light that it gives us with that of the sun in order to find how many times it would outshine the sun if it were as near to us as he is. In these comparisons the sun seldom comes out ahead. Almost always he is overwhelmingly beaten.
